FRIENDS VISIT JAIL TO OFFER CAMPBELL AID

35 Come to See Suspect in Baker Case at His Invitation.

FIRST COURT FIGHT WILL OCCUR TODAY

Habeas Corpus Hearing to Be Conducted Before Judge McCarthy.

ARLINGTON WARRANT WILL BE DROPPED

Marshal to Present U. S. Charge and Captive Will Go to Alexandria.

Friends of Herbert M. Campbell, accused of the murder of Mary E. Baker, offered their assistance to the suspect yesterday on the eve of the first court skirmish in the fight against removal to the District for trial.

In response to the prisoner's invitation, about 35 of his acquaintances appeared at the Arlington County Jail, where he has been held since July 21. Most of them were from this city and Virginia.

Mrs. Ruth Callahan Campbell, his wife, arrived at the jail early in the day. From 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock, acquaintances of the prisoner kept him company. Mrs. Campbell left shortly before noon and returned later with food for her husband.

Other Captives Benefit.

They were permitted to bring delicacies for Campbell. So many came, however, that their gifts of ice cream and cigarettes kept other prisoners supplied for the rest of the day.

Today at 10 o'clock the first court scene will occur in Campbell's fight against removal. Sheriff Howard B. Fields and Deputy Sheriff Harry L. Woodyard will present the suspect in Circuit Judge Walter T. McCarthy's court in response to an order issued by him after Charles H. Smith, Campbell's attorney, had petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus.

Deputy U. S. Marshal William Schoeni, of Alexandria, will take the prisoner in custody after Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth drops a murder warrant issued for Campbell in Arlington County.

To Go to Alexandria.

Mr. Schoeni will then present a Federal murder warrant issued by United States Commissioner J. Barton Phillips, on Saturday, in Alexandria. Campbell will then be taken to Alexandria to await a hearing on Wednesday afternoon on a removal warrant to the District.

Those who visited the prisoner yesterday said he was in good spirits, although he had lost some weight. He assured them that within a short time he would be a free man and thanked them for their confidence in him.

Two Die in Derailment As Train Strikes Auto

Vernon, Tex., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Two men were killed and eleven persons injured today in the derailment of an eastbound Fort Worth and Denver passenger train at an underpass at Oklaunion, 8 miles east of here.

Direct cause of the wreck was attributed by officials to a truck driven by Arthur Cummings, said to have dislocated the track in passing through the underpass. When the truck's load failed to clear the structure, Cummings ran up the embankment and vainly attempted to halt the train. The dead are F. B. Robertson, 65, the engineer, of Wichita Falls, Tex., and A. A. Vance, 40, the fireman, of Amarillo, Tex.

Textile Strike Declared In France for Pay Raise

Lille, France, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A general strike in the textile industry in the Lille, Roubaix, Tourcoing triangle was voted today by the federation of textile unions and syndicates, to be effective tomorrow.

The strike order which affects 100,000 workers, is not aimed at the old age pension laws, but demands an increase in wages. Steel workers to the number of 28,000 are already on strike in this region.

Commerce Pact Signed By Italy and Soviet

Rome, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Minister of Finance Mosconi and Minister of Corporations Bottai, representing the Italian Government, and Commercial Attache Lieubimoff of Soviet Russia today signed a commercial treaty designed to favor the purchase of Italian products.

The two ministers and diplomatic and commercial representatives of the Soviet Republic later attended a banquet.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: This is the greatest business country in the world. The welfare of our people, especially the wage earners, is entirely dependent on prosperity. Yet we have the peculiar spectacle of business being in chronic fear of the Government. A great apprehension is felt about the action of Congress and more or less about the attitude of the executive and regulatory departments.

This trouble arises because business men do not understand public relations and officeholders do not understand economic relations. They do not speak the same language. Many good business men in office do not know how to talk about business. Some men in business and some demagogues in office need to be restrained and controlled. But in general, men in business and public office are trying to be fair.

Now that the people can see more plainly the great service that business renders, furnishing employment to dependent wage earners and supplying the public needs, they ought to make it plain that they are equally opposed to unfair practices in trade and demagoguery in office and they ought to insist upon that cooperation between the Government and legitimate business which will remove fear and distrust and promote good will and prosperity.

SERVICES SET TODAY FOR MRS. JOHNSON

HUSBAND KEEPS VIGIL

Banked with a veritable sea of floral wreaths, the mute testimonials of affection from the White House, baseball fandom and countless representatives of the national game to the diamond's greatest figure in his most profound sorrow, Mrs. Walter Johnson will be laid to rest today.

In the modest home at Alta Vista, Md., where the misfortunes of illness and accident have been all too frequent in these late years, funeral services for the wife of the Washington baseball club's manager will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning by the Rev. Joseph E. Williams, pastor of the Bethesda Episcopal Church, where the family worshipped.

Borne by Clark Griffith, Thomas S. Flaherty, George S. Have, Ford Yung, Joe Engel, and M. F. Martin, the casket will be taken from the home along the walk flanked by the members of the Washington Club, all acting as honorary pallbearers.

With interment in the Rockville Union Cemetery, on a secluded crest, Sergt. Leroy Rogers and 12 Montgomery County policemen have been detailed as an escort along the old Georgetown road, which will be closed to all traffic from Battery lane to the Rockville pike from 8:30 o'clock this morning until the funeral procession has passed.

Arrangements have been made by the authorities to handle the large throng expected to gather at the Johnson home, where a flood of messages of condolence have come from all parts of the country to keep pace with the floral pieces arriving in fast order after the wreath sent by the President and Mrs. Hoover.

As a mark for the deep esteem in which they hold the Big Train, the players of the New York Yankees, the Boston Red Sox and the Chicago White Sox also sent wreaths to add to the mounting profusion of flowers. Another was from the Umpire Association of the District of Columbia.

At the home last night arrived Mrs. Johnson's father, Edwin E. Roberts, former representative from Nevada and now mayor of Reno, who made a speedy trip from his home by airplane to Chicago, where he made connections with a fast train.

Johnson's mother and his three brothers, Earl, Chester and Leslie Johnson, also arrived during the day from Coffeyville, Kans., the starting point of the recent automobile trip which was climaxed by the entry of Mrs. Johnson in Georgetown Hospital with heat exhaustion, the ailment

EXCITEMENT RULES RIOT-TORN BOMBAY

Gandhi's Followers Are Out of His Control, Declare Veteran Observers.

DUAL RULE CONSIDERED

Bombay, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Intense excitement, demonstrated by singing, marching processions, keyed up Bombay today as the outcome of yesterday's disorders in which 300 civil disobedience volunteers were injured. A huge procession of Parsees was under way tonight.

Well-informed observers said there was no chance that negotiations with Mahatma Gandhi could end the struggle. They feared that even if Gandhi declared for peace his followers would disobey him now.

Forty-one Bombay mills closed down yesterday, and the laborers are joining the Congress party. Lorryloads of mill hands today toured the city shouting Congress slogans.

The working committee of the All-India Congress, now in session here, has been considering the establishment of a parallel government, to work alongside the present regime in Gujarat, which is a Nationalist stronghold. The Congress general staff was much reduced in ranks by yesterday's arrest of Vallabhai Patel and five other leaders, who were charged with participating in an unlawful assembly.

Plans for the dual government, as tentatively outlined, provided for taking over the courts, the police, the collection of taxes, and operation of the postal service throughout the district. Gujara tis one of the principal cotton areas of India.

All income from taxes and postal receipts, etc., would be turned over to Congress, which would have its headquarters at Ahmedabad, the site of the All-India Congress' main office. Abul Kalam Azad, nominated by Patel as his successor Friday, succeeded Patel as acting head of the Congress. In vent that his acting authority is made permanent, he will be the first Mohammedan to serve as president of the Congress during the present movement. He is a Bengali, and a fast friend of Gandhi's, belonging to the right wing of the party, and standing for vigorous civil disobedience without violence.

Woman, Shot, Dies; Man Held as Slayer

Maggie Landon, colored, 32 years old, of 3114 Brickyard Hill, died at Georgetown Hospital last night from a bullet wound inflicted on July 26 in an altercation with a man at the C. & O bright on Thirty-first street northwest.

Seventh Precinct police immediately lodged charges of murder against Charles Morris, colored, 32 years old, of G street near Twenty-second street northwest, who had been held since the shooting on charges of assault with intent to kill.

Three Children Wounded In Juvenile Gang Battle

Youngsters of Chicago Emulate Notorious Methods to Settle Dispute; Escape, Lacking Only High-Powered Car; Bystanders Shot.

Chicago, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Three child bystanders were shot and wounded today when a juvenile "gang war" broke out in the heart of Chicago's West Side melting pot.

The story, as witnesses related it to police, was that Louis Hoda, 11 years old, and Albert Biachi 7—small, but mighty—used their fists upon the Obazza brothers—John and Teddy, 12 and 14—with results very distressing to the Obazzas, who finally took to flight.

Louis and Albert were gloating pridefully for the benefit of Sam Sharisena, 6; Billy Korkoras, 8, and Florence Mollere, 15, when John, carrying a handful of bullets, and Teddy, bearing a rifle, returned to erase the stain from the Obazza escutcheon.

When the smoke had cleared, Sam was lying on the sidewalk with a bullet in the right leg; Billie with one in the right thigh, and Florence with a wound in the right foot.

Albert and Louis were unscatched and the Obazzas had fled, failing to carry out gangland practice in one respect—they had no "high powered car."

FOREIGN GROUP LEAVES KULING AS REDS NEAR

Chinese Summer Resort Abandoned by Order of Officials,

COMMUNIST ACTIVITY THREATENS NANCHANG

British, U. S. and Japs' Gunboats Ready to Aid Refugees.

FETTERED PEASANTS SHIELDING SOLDIERS

Wounded Colonel of Hunan Troops Says Farmers Were Slaughtered.

Shanghai, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Kuling, Kiangsi, today said that evacuation of foreigners from that mountain summer resort was proceeding rapidly as a result of the virtual demand both by Chinese and foreign officials at Kiukiang that they depart.

Officials declared the resort was in imminent danger of falling into the hands of the Communists. The greater portion of foreigners already has departed, the majority to Kiukiang, where they sought steamer accommodations ether to Hankow or Shanghai.

Despite official urgings, a few foreigners, principally missionaries, still remained, consdering the situation not yet sufficently serioius to leave. Meanwhile, reports from various other points in northern Kiangsi indicated that Communist activities were growing. Advices from Nanchang said the city still was in the hands of provincial authorities, but that the Reds were close by. Other reports said large bodies of Reds were westward of Kiukiang, advancing toward the river city.

Chinese Exodus Continues.

The Chinese exodus from Nanchang, which has been under way several days, continues. Thousands are leaving the provincial capital and concentrating at Kiukiang, where they consider chances of escaping Communist ravages greater.

In the event of a Red attack on Kiukang, foreign vessels there are considered adequate to remove foreigners. Gunboats stationed there are the British Scarab, the American Luzon and two Japanese destroyers.

Chinese defenses of Kiukiang are understood to be 2,000 soldiers. What attempts the Nationalist government at Nanking is making to oppose the Reds there were not indicated.

Fettered Peasants Slain.

Hankow, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A wounded colonel of Hunan provincial troops, who arrived here today for hospitalization said that hordes of Red soldiers advanced into battle at Changsha, driving herds of fettered peasants before them. The officers said the farmers' arms were bound behind their backs. Troops ceased their fire when they realized they were slaughtering helpless farmers in large numbers, the colonel added.

Mears and Pilot Escape Injury As World Flight Plane Crashes

FLIER'S PARIS HOP BALKED BY CRASH

PLANE INJURES WOMAN

(Picture on Page Two.)

Los Angeles, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The airplane in which he hoped to fly to Paris, wrecked yesterday in a crash which also injured a woman and demolished an automobile, George R. Hutchinson, Richmond, Va., aviator, today said he would remain here until repairs are made to the ship. He had expected to hop off late today for the East.

Hutchinson's ship, a Lockheed monoplane, crashed into a fence during the take-off of a test flight. Hutchinson said damage to the plane will amount to about $2,000 and will require two weeks to repair. The injured woman, Mrs. George W. Johnson, wife of the vice president of the Federal Oil Co. of California, is in a hospital with a fractured vertebra and a lacerated scalp. Hutchinson was unhurt.

Mrs. Johnson had parked her automobile and stepped to the inclosure to watch the plane leave. When she saw it careen, she ran but fell in its path. One of the landing wheels struck her head.

When the landing gear struck the fence the plane crashed into Mrs. Johnson's automobile. The flier said today his unfamiliarity with the Lockeed caused the crash.

Richmond, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—George R. Hutchinson, whose airplane, the City of Richmond, Virginia, was wrecked yesterday in Los Angeles in a test flight preceding a proposed transcontinental and New York-to-Paris flight, is a native of Richmond.

He hoped to break the West-East nonstop crossing records in the cross-continent flight and to better Lindbergh's solo flight time across the Atlantic.

The flights were to be backed by Richmonders among others. Hutchinson formerly was a caddy on Richmond golf links. He is married and his wife and two small daughters, now in Atlantic City, each has been in the air with him more than 100 hours.

Craft Jumps Runway in Attempted Take-Off Before Dawn.

Man Who Sought to Beat Record of Graf Will Try Again.

Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Whatever dreams John Henry Mears had of bettering the globe-circling mark of the Graf Zeppelin, a mark he has held twice, today lay shattered in a mass of twisted wreckage of what was his plane, City of New York.

Nosingover in the early dawn, after leaving the smooth rnuway that stretches out from Harbor Grace airport, the plane suffered irreparable damage. Neither Mears, his pilot, Henry J. Brown, or Tailwind II, canine mascot, was injured.

A survey of the wreckage, however, showed a broken propeller, both wings partially shattered, t ehunder-carriage torn off, one tire bursted and the body, one wheen and one strut broken.

Airport officials said the accident occurred because Mears heeded the plea of his pilot for an early start on the first leg of their trip, a 1,900-mile water hop to Baldonnel airport, Ireland. They started in the darkness, aided only by automobile lights and flares, against the wishes of the airport officials.

After what seemed a perfect start, the plane suddenly struck the side of the runway, careened into the brush along the side, and nosed over. Before airport attaches could reach the scene Mears and Brown had freed themselves and were absently gazing at the debris.

The plane did not catch fire, and this perhaps saved the lives of the two airmen and their mascot. Tailwind II had not returned to the field tonight and Mears believed he had been frightened into flight by the accident.

The accident occurred at 2:45 a. m. (Eastern standard time). Had the attempted take-off been postponed half an hour, flying field officials said, it would have been light enough for Brown to have guided the ship safely down the 4,000-foot runway, which is 400 feet wide.

A punctured tire is believed to have caused the mishap. Brown gambled on a west-southwest run across the field, and once it left the smooth track it swerved and nosed over.

Mears said tonight that the wreckage would be shipped to New York.

They will have another attempt, he said, and if the plane can not be repaired they will obtain a new one.

The two airmen left Roosevelt Field, N. Y., early Saturday.

"We are temporarily down, but not out," Mears said tonight. "We will try again if not this year, 1931 will not catch us asleep."

He said he was heartily in accord with Brown's plans and that the pilot

HEAT WAVE RETURNS WITH READING OF 100

NO SHOWERS IN SIGHT

Another siege of excessive heat is in store for Washington, as indicated by the temperatures yesterday, which broke this year's new all-time record when it rose to 100 for the eighth time. The Weather Bureau predicts fair and continued warm for today and says there is no chance of tempering rain. Previous to 1930 the record was four days of 100-degree temperatures in one summer, set in 1874.

An official temperature of 100 degrees was recorded at the Weather Bureau at 4 o'clock. The streets downtown were hotter, as the Pennsylvania avenue kiosk thermometer reached 103 about 3:30 o'clock. The humidity, which was about 30 all day, again proved a factor which somewhat discounted the high temperature. About 4:30 o'clock a strong southwest breeze started the temperature dropping slowly.

Again yesterday the heat caused an exodus of Washingtonians toward beaches and bathing resorts. Those who were unable to leave the city sought relief in the parks and swimming pools as the mercury rose.

Nearly 18,000 persons who attended the baseball games at Griffith Stadium were vividly shown the effect of the long heat and drought on the grass of the playing field. Large plots of brown dead turf marked the outfield, which is usually a sparkling green throughout the summer.

Although thousands sought relief in nearby waters, police early last night had received no reports of drownings or other water casualties.

Boston, Aug 3 (A.P.).—The mercury reached 98 in Boston today, equaling the all-time August record and making this the hottest day here so far this year, as a hot spell moved over into New England from the Middle West.

Kansas City, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Already baked by weeks of unusually hot, dry weather, the Southwest wilted still more today as a scorching sun sent the mercury up to many new seasonal records.

In Kansas City hot winds combined with the sun to take relief beyond the reach of thousands who sought parks and shaded porches. Bathers reported water in many pools too warm for comfort.

The mercury soared to 110 degrees at Topeka, Kans., exceeding an all-time record by 4 degrees. The same temperature prevailed at Salina and Wichita, Kans. At Emporia, Kans., a mark of 113 degrees broke an all-time record of 112 degrees set July 12.

St. Louis reported a reading of 103 degrees.

Oklahoma City viewed the establishment of a seasonal record when the mercury registered 106 degrees. At Mangum, Okla., a temperature of 111 degrees was recorded. Dallas, Tex., reported 101 degrees.

BANK ROBBERY SUSPECT HELD OIL FIRM THUG

Lord Baltimore Filling Station Man Identifies Davis as Bandit.

NO CHARGE AGAINST TWO HELD IN THEFT

Third Linked in Holdup of Messenger Sought Vainly Here.

CASHIER AT HOSPITAL FAILS TO NAME PAIR

Unable to Recognize Them as Those Who Wrested $7,000 Pay Roll.

Carl B. Davis, 20 years old, of A street near Sixteenth street northeast, who was arrested in connection with the recent holdup of a bank messenger, has been identified as one of the bandits who held up the Lord Baltimore filling station collector on July 13 and escaped with $2,200. Davis has not been charged with either robbery, however.

Officials at headquarters said yesterday that Davis had been confronted by one of the men who were robbed in the filling station at Second street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest just three weeks ago, and that the man had pointed out Davis as one of the bandits.

Two men bound and gagged the driver of a taxi and used the machine to transport themselves to the Pennsylvania avenue station. Here they found Benjamin F. Burch, a collector for the chain and robbed him of the week-end receipts of the 79 stations. The taxi cab was later found abandoned near the scene of the robbery.

Police Hunt Fruitless.

Police combing the city for the third man implicated in the holdup Friday of a young messenger for the Mount Vernon Savings Bank have had no success, and the opinion is prevalent that the man has left the city. It is thought that he took alarm when he read of the arrest of his confederates, and immediately left town.

Meanwhile, no specific charge has been placed against the two men arrested Saturday in connection with the case. The men are Davis and Morris C. Beck, 18 years old, of Fourteenth street near Girard street northwest. They are being held in cells at separate precinct stations for investigation.

Davis is at the First Precinct, while Beck is staying at the Third. About $400, which is alleged to be a part of the $3,500 loot of the robbery, was seized when the pair was arrested.

Car Owner Released.

Another man, owner of the car used by the bandits, who was held for questioning, has been released. It was established that the machine implicated in the holdup was either stolen from this other man, or borrowed from him by friends.

The cashier of Children's Hospital, Miss Eleanor Page, who was robbed the day before of $7,000 by two bandits, did not identify them as the same men who threw her to the pavement and wrested the bag of money from her. She viewed them at Detective Headquarters, but said they did not resemble the pair who robbed her.

Taxi Driver Held Up.

A taxi driver was held up last night in a lonely spot in southeast Washington by three armed bandits who were frightened off before they got anything. Police believe them to be the same gang which Saturday robbed a cab driver in the same spot of $19.

Yesterday's victim was Jack C. Harper, of 19 G street4 northwest. He was hired by the three men at Third street and Pennsaltvania avenue northwest to drive them to Congress Heights. At a deserted place at the end of Nichols avenue extend-

Lost Youth's Mother Keeps Vigil in Capital

Hope Held Lad Found in New Haven May Be Morgan Moorer.

Overwhelmed with anguish, yet clinging to a lingering hope that her son is alive, Mrs. M. P. Moorer, widow of a well-known surgeon of Asheville, N. C., and mother of Morgan P. Moorer, jr., 17-years-old freshman of the University of North Carolina, who disappeared from the university last February, was located in Washington last night.

At the time that she was found by a Post reporter at a boarding house on B street near First street northeast, Mrs. Moorer was awaiting word from New Haven, Conn., where a boy, reported to resemble her son, is being held by police. Mrs. Moorer came to Washington three months ago to seek relief from the worry and publicity that have followed her since her son vanished. She also came her to work so that she might drive away, partially, at least, the burden of despair that is oppressing her she explained. She would not reveal her place of employment.

Successful in keeping her whereabouts secret, Mrs. Moorer has maintained constant touch with authorities throughout the country. She has offered $500 reward for the finding of her son, and circulars describing him have been widely distributed.

Mrs. Moorer is certai that her son is the victim of a mental hiatus. On

He had just finished writing a letter to his mother, thanking her for a check she had sent him. He left this check, together with some currency and his glasses on an open book.

The professor's wife saw him leave the house bareheaded as though going for a stroll. The letter he left behind was a deeply affectionate one, and gave no indication that he was going away. His disappearance did not

Drought-Dwindled Rivers Are Decimating Fish Stock

Sea Water Creeps Inland as Potomac Shrinks Until Crabs Are Being Taken on Commercial Scale Within 20 Miles of Washington.

(Associated Press.)

Record heat this summer over the continent has caused the most distress ever experienced by the fish population of the United States and its adjacent waters, the United States Bureau of Fisheries said yesterday in describing complaints it has received.

Streams low or entirely dried up, lakes the same, cold spring-fed brooks heating up as their sources fail and their contents shrink, and sea water encroaching up the tidal estuaries at the river mouths are all paints told in the tidings of disaster that have crowded in for weeks to the bureau.

The finny tribes already have been decimated and destroyed to a degree that is incalculable, the announcement said, and the seekers of fish for sport and food will be ruefully aware of the losses for many seasons to come.

"This maintenance of heat and drought over almost the entire continental area is beyond our experience," said Lewis Radclyffe, deputy commissioner of the bureau, in recounting some of the troubles that are being faced.

"It has unremittingly struck at ed, they got out of the cab and held a gun on him. One of them told him to hand over his money. At this point another car approached and brush which lines the roadway. Harper reported the affair to police, but an immediate search of the vicinity was fruitless.

Police pointed out that last night's robbery was exactly like the one of last Saturday, when another driver was picked up at the same spot and drove to the same destination with the same results. Descriptions given by the two drivers tally, they said.

Stunts by Pilots Thrill Big Crowd at Airport

Hundreds of motorists who yesterday parked their automobiles on the grounds surrounding Washington Airport were thrilled by fliers attached to the field who competed in a program of acribatic flying. Loops, rolls, spins and other maneuvers were exhibited to the audience, members of which afterwards tried their skill at estimating the altitude at which a standard biplane flew above the field. More than 300 estimates were made on cards which were distributed free. The winners were given an aerial hop without charge.

A program of instrumental and vocal music was broadcast at the field through a microphone and amplifying device installed in the manager's office. Similar programs are put on each week at this flying field and parking facilities are provided without charge.

and were dispersed by Communists who advanced into Changsha inflicting heavy losses on the provincial soldiery.

The situation at Changsha was obscure tonight. Indications were that Communists, having looted and burned the silk manufacturing city, were beginning to withdraw to a point 10 miles east, where major bodies were entrenching and mounting machine guns, apparently anticipating a government attack.

Charred, Battered Body Of ManFound inGeorgia

Logansville, Ga., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The charred, battered body of an unidentified man was found in a burned farmhouse near here today. Evidence uncovered by authorities indicated the man had been slain after a fierce struggle in a swamp and carried into the house to be burned. Police believe the man had been "taken for a hide," robbed and killed, or that the slaying was the outcome of a gambling game.

The body was discovered by a farmer, who went to investigate the fire.

Plane Falls Into Crowd At Ariport, Killing Boy

Findlay, Ohio, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—An airplane at the airport here crashed into a crowd in attempting to take off late today, killing a 9-year-old boy and injuring six other persons, including the pilot.

William M. Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Edwards, Detroit, Mich., was killed when the ship crushed a cot upon which he was lying. Mrs. William Dewey, 41 years old, Hastings, Mich., received possible internal injuries and is in a serious condition. Harry Rummell, one of the owners of the airport here and pilot of the plane, was slightly cut about the face.

Two Men Walk Across Rhine; Channel Is Next

Bingen, Germany, Aug. 3 (A.P.). Two Austrians, Professor Mitter and Julius Hirsch, as a prelude to a stroll across the waters of the English Channel, today "walked" across the river Rhine from Bingen to Ruedeshiem on home made "water skis."

On arriving at Ruedesheim they stowed the collapsible skies in their rucksacks and continued their hike on land. At the foot of the National Monument they deposited a wreath with the words "on the first crossing of the Rhine on water skis, from the Austrian Aquatic Hikers to the Liberated Rhine."

BOY, 3, BADLY HURT AS AUTO HITS POLE

OTHER TRAFFIC MISHAPS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

William Todd Rosemund, jr., 3 years old, of Harrisburg, Pa., was severely injured yesterday morning when the car driven by his father struck a telephone pole on the Washington-Richmond highway near the Penn Daw hotel, about 3 miles south of Alexandria. According to Traffic Policeman A. W. Mills, who investigated the accident, the father swerved the car from the roadway to keep from hitting a youth, Joseph Hardbower, who was riding on a bicycle. The child had its right arm nearly severed by the glass of the car. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where physicians believed the arm would have to be amputated.

A car driven by Albert Smith, of Massapomoax, Va., collided with a car driven by C. H. Kuehnle, of Philadelphia, Pa., at Gum Springs, on the Washington-Richmond highway. The parties were taken before Justice of the Peace Harry Shepherd at Accotink by Traffic Policeman Mills, where Smith was fined $50 and costs for colliding and reckless driving. He was taken to the Fairfax Jail when he was unable to pay the fine.

Elsie Comber, 20, of Calvington, Va., was injured late yesterday evening when the car in which she was riding overturned on the Burke road near Burke Station. The car was driven by Harry Jerman, of Burke, who stated to the police that the steering gear of the car locked as they were turning the corner. The girl was taken to the Alexandria Hospital by Sheriff Eppa P. Kirby, of Fairfax, and Traffic Policeman Arthur W. Mills.

Thomas Jasper, Jasper place near Stanton road southeast in Washington, was arrested last night by Traffic Policeman Mills in Fairfax and charged with driving while under influence of ardent spirits. He was lodged in the Fairfax County Jail for the night. A hearing will be held in Fairfax this morning.

Town Sergeant Walter Mitchell, of Falls Church, has in his possession a sedan bearing a Maryland license number, 283,926. Mitchell states that the car came through Falls Church about midnight Saturday at high rate of speed and being driven recklessly. He gave chase in an attempt to stop it. The chase lasted for about 20 miles, ending at Pleasant Valley, when the driver suddenly turned into a side road jumped from the car and ran into the bushes along the roadside. A search failed to reveal him. The car was brought to the Fairfax Jail to await a claimant. During the chase through the Village of Merrifield; Town of Fairfax, Pender and Chantilly along the Lee highway and the Lee-Jackson highway several shots were fired by Mitchell. Two hit the back of the car. One of the bullets went all the way through the rear seat and scratched the top of the front seat. No bloodstains were found in the car.

Thomas R. Keith, of Fairfax, one of the Democratic candidates for the nomination for Congress from the Eighth Virginia District, will deliver an address this evening from Radio Station WMAL in Washington at 8:45 o'clock. This will be his last public address prior to the primary tomorrow. This will be a repetition of the speech made last Friday night over Station WJSV.

The Fairfax County School Board will hold its August meeting this morning at 10 o'clock in the board room of the Fairfax Courthouse. Many important questions in connection with the next term of school are to be decided, including the opening day of the term and holidays to be allowed the children next year. The regular meeting will be preceded by a special meeting of the committee selected by the school board and the County Board of Supervisors to investigate and recommend a site for the proposed county vocational high school.

The Fairfax County Young People's Council of Religious Education, which was organized this summer under direction of the Rev. S. Y. Craig, of the Baptist Church at Fairfax, and by Miss Isabel Latimer, will hold its meeting tomorrow night.

The Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 44 at Falls Church will meet tonight in the Odd Fellows Hall on Broad street.

The Holy Name Society of St. James Catholic Church at West Falls Church will meet tomorrow night in the rectory of the church.

The board of deacons of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will meet tonight at the home of J. L. Shotwell on Broad street.

Women of the Falls Church district branch of the Fairfax County chapter of the American Red Cross will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. F. Hannah near Annandale. They will be assisted by Miss Sadie James, of National Red Cross headquarters, in Washington, and Mrs. Russell A. Lynn, of Herndon, president of the Fairfax County chapter. The county health nurse, Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, will explain the need of nursing committees in each locality to assist her in carrying on health and nursing work.

The Boy Scout troop committee at Annanadale will hold its meeting tonight in the scout hall. Scout Master J. W. Mercer is planning to reorganize the troop at the meeting. Members will be grouped into three age classifications, senior, intermediate and junior scouts.

The Fairfax Town Council will meet tonight for the first time in two months. At the meeting scheduled last month no quorum was present so no business could be transacted.

The Fairfax Garden Club will hold its August meeting tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Miss Mary ..mbler on Main street.

The August meeting of the Franconia School and Community League will be held tomorrow night in the auditorium of the Franconia School at 8 o'clock.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Southern Methodist Church will be held tomorrow afternoon in the church.

The school board of the town of Falls Church will meet tomorrow night to consider plans for the coming school term. These will include the completion of the list of new teachers and the repairs being made to the Jefferson High School Building.

The Pioneer class of the Presbyterian Church at Falls Church will meet tomorrow in the church parlors to continue their sewing for a mountain mission hospital, under the direction of Mrs. E. L. Brandon.

There will be a meeting of the Pioneer Grange at Masonville tomorrow night.

The board of directors of the Andrew Chapel Cemetery Association plan to hold its annual meeting tonight at the home of C. S. Sanders at Andrew Chapel. The directors will elect officers for the coming year, review finances of the association and make general plans for the next year. The present board is composed of Lester Follin, chairman; Mrs. Marvin Sanders, secretary; C. S. Sanders, treasurer; Dallas Berry and Roy Money.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE IN MAY SHOWS GAIN

Montgomery County Report Received From State Department.

GAS MAIN HEARING SET

Montgomery County school attendance in May, 1930, showed a decided improvement over the attendance for the same month in 1929, according to the report of the State Department of Education just received by Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome at Rockville.

White high schools of the county were eleventh in the State in percentage of attendance, the report shows, with an average of 94.3 per cent as against 93.4 per cent in May, 1929. The State average is 94.3 per cent. White elementary schools were sixth with an average attendance of 92.4 per cent, the 1929 average being 89 per cent and the State average being 91.5 per cent. White one-teacher schools were third in their class, with an average of 91.6 per cent, the average being 87.7 per cent and the State average being 88.4 per cent.

Two-teacher white schools were seventh in their class with an average of 92 per cent, the 1929 average being 86.6 per cent and the State average being 90.4 per cent. White graded schools placed ninth in their class with an average of 92.6 per cent, the 1929 average being 90 per cent and the State average being 92.4 per cent. Colored high schools were eighth in their class with an average of 94 per cent, the 1929 figures being 95 per cent and the State average 93.7 per cent. Colored elementary schools placed third in their class with an average of 90.2 per cent, the 1929 average being 89.7 and the State average 86 per cent.

A public hearing on an application for permission to extend the mains of the Washington Gas Light Co. to Garrett Park and Rockville will be held Wednesday by the Maryland Public Service Commission at Baltimore. If the application is approved, work on installation of gas mains to these two towns should begin early this month, gas company officials say.

City gas will then be available to residents of these two towns early in the fall. The extension is part of an extensive program of extension into Montgomery County on the part of the gas company.

Depression Laid To Silver Slump

Salt Lake City Man Tells How It Affects Trade in Far East.

Ely, Nev., Aug. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Slumping silver prices, with a corresponding decrease in the purchasing power of the Orient, is a major factor in the present period of depression, in the opinion of many business leaders, according to Walter L. Roche, of Salt Lake City, representative of the National Cities Co. of San Francisco.

Mr. Roche, in an address before the Ely Rotary Club, illustrated his point by citing as an example the case of a Seattle merchant who shipped $10,000 worth of goods to Hongkong. Upon their arrival, so far has the value of silver fallen, that a Chinese merchant must pay 27,000 silver dollars for the same goods, an increase of almost three times as much metal. The same drastic reduction in purchasing power has been made in India and the remainder of the silver-using Orient, said Mr. Roche.

Direct results of the falling price of the white metal have been shown in the shutdowns of lessened production plans of mines throughout the West, with the consequent unemployment.

$15,000 Fire Destroys Store in Harrisonburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 3.—Firemen battled the most baffling fire in their career this afternoon when flames burned the basement of the Venda Variety Store on the court square. The damage is placed at $15,000, partly covered by insurance. Several firemen were overcome by the smoke and intense heat. The firemen battled the flames for more than two hours.

Due to the shortage of water here, water was pumped from the old big spring to combat the flames. The store and insurance offices above were ruined by smoke and flames.

30 EVENTS LISTED FOR HORSE SHOW

Record Uumber of Entries Filed at Prince William County Affair.

VARIOUS CLASSES ADDED

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Aug. 3.—The largest list of entries ever booked for the Prince William County Horse Show, which will be held on the show grounds at Nokesville August 6 and 7, will be seen during the two days of the judging of 30 classes.

Among some of the classes are those for thoroughbreds, halfbreeds, heavy draft, roadsters, saddle class, ponies, touch-and-out classes, 3-and 4-year-old hunters, green hunters, lightweight hunters, Corinthian hunters, handicap hunters, ladies' hunters and special classes. One of the special classes of particular interest will be the remount class, for 3-year-olds sired by remount stallions, suitable to become hunters, and for which the Remount Association gives three prizes. Another special class added this year will be that for polo ponies, for which E. R. Conner has donated the prizes.

Included among the many entries are some of the finest horses in this section of the country, from the stables of John R. Massie, Ray H. Norton, Melvin C. Hazen, Leon Arnold, Mrs. Henry Parson Erwin, W. Frank Burrows and Mrs. W. J. Chewning, jr., all of Washington; Dr. E. T. Trice and Edwin Vaughan, Richmond; Thomas M. Waller, J. T. Gwathmey, J. BALL WILL SPEAK OVER RADIO TODAY

RUM SEIZED AT ROSSLYN

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

State Senator Frank L. Ball, of Arlington County, seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress in a five-cornered race in the primary election to be held in the Eighth Congressional District tomorrow, will make his last appeal to the voters tonight, over the radio. He will speak from Station WJSV, Mount Vernon Hills, Va., from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

Senator Ball has made an extensive campaign, speaking in each of the ten counties and the City of Alexandria several times in the last two months.

He is the only candidate who has the support of the Antisaloon League of Virginia, a statement having gone out from the league's headquarters that he is the only one of the five candidates who has answered the quuestionnaire satisfactorily. At all of his public meetings he stressed that he is bot personally and politically dry.

The district comprises Alexandria City and the following counties: Arlington, Fairfax, Loudoun, Culpeper, Louisa, Orange, Stafford, Prince William, King George and Fauquier.

Indications are that the vote in Arlington County tomorrow will be one of the heaviest cast at any Democratic primary in many years, due to the fact that there are two candidates, Ball and Mackey, in the race from the county, with Judge Howard W. Smith living just outside, in the City of Alexandria.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed chicken houses and a number of other outbuildings at the home of Charles Rickett, colored, at Halls Hill yesterday.

Firemen from Ballston, Cherrydale, Clarendon and Halls Hills were handicapped by lack of water. The only available source of water was cut off when the pump house, within a few feet of the burning buildings, caught fire. Chemicals were used. Damages were estimated at $900.

Edward Gardner, colored, running to the fire, escaped serious injury when struck by the Halls Hill fire engine. Picked up, he was found to be suffering only a few lacerations.

Raiding the camp of H. B. Simpson, on the river shore above the Key Bridge, at Rosslyn, early yesterday morning, Sheriff Howard B. Fields, with Policemen Raymond Crack, James D. East, John R. Burke and Hugh Jones, siezed 50 cases of beer, 15 gallons of wine and 20 gallons of liquor.

Simpson and Raymond Henderson were arrested, taken to the county jail, and charged with illegal possession. They were each released on $1,500 bond.

The county health department has announced the preschool dental clinics for the month of August as follows: Today and tomorrow, at the Clarendon Health Center; Wednesday, at the Virginia Highlands Health Center, and Thursday, at the Cherrydale Health Center.

These clinics will be held in the morning from 9 to 12, and from 1 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The clinics are in charge of Dr. C. P. Boyland

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, urges all parents having children of preschool age to take advantage of this service, which the department is giving without fee.

Funeral services for Oscar MacCullen, 65 years old, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Haley, Spruce street, Lyon Village, will be conducted from the home this afternoon by the Rev. E. R. Palmer. Burial will be in Columbia Gardens.

Born at Kinston, N. C., at the age of 17 years he entered the employ of the Western Union Telegraph Co., and at the time of his death was chief of the testing and regulation department, with offices in Washington.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Haley, of Lyon Village, and Mrs. T. P. Gray, of Lyon Park, and one son, Allen MacCullen, of Washington.

The Missionary Society and Ladies Aid of the Ballston Central Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will hold a picnic lunch at their joint all-day meeting to be held at the church Wednesday.

Upon the recommendation of Raymond V. Long, State architect, the Arlington County School Board has appointed Earl Brunner, of East Falls Church, and E. L. Rilley, of Clarendon, as inspectors for the school building program, which includes enlargements to the Washington-Lee High School and elementary school buildings at Lyon Park, Bon Air, Aurora Hills and Aurora Heights.

Mr. Brunner has been assigned to the high school project, while Rilley will look after the work at the elementary schools. Work is now under way at the high school and plans for work on the elementary school buildings will be completed today.

The monthly meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation will be held Thursday night in the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock, instead of tomorrow night, owing to the Democratic primary election.

Due to the carnival of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department, which opened Saturday night and will continue through the entire week, the monthly meeting of the fire department scheduled for Wednesday night has been postponed. The date will be announced later.

A lawn fete and cafeteria supper will be held at the Virginia Avenue Christian Church, Pershing drive and Virginia avenue, Lyon Park, Wednesday and Thursday of this week from 5 to 8 o'clock. The proceeds will go to the church building fund.

Smith and Raskob Call on Roosevelt

Southampton, L. I., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith, former governor, and John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, tonight paid an "old-fashioned" visit to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is the guest of his law partner, Bagil D. O'Connor, at Westhampton. The visit, said Mr. Smith, had "no political significance."

Gov. Roosevelt, during the day, said that he would meet Mr. Smith during his stay here, but that they would not talk politics.

Much significance is attached by observers to the presence of the three Democratic chieftains. James A. Farley, secretary of the State democratic committee, accompanied Gov. Roosevelt here tonight.

WAR VETERAN DIES OF INJURY BY TRAIN

Thomas J. Bennett, Jr., Had Worked as Brakeman in Potomac Yards.

OTHER ALEXANDRIA NEWS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

Thomas J. Bennett, jr., 32 years old and a World War veteran, died early yesterday morning in the Alexandria Hospital from the result of injuries received at the Potomac freight yard, where he worked as a brakeman. According to reports received, Mr. Bennett was found by a freight conductor lying beside one of the transfer tracks, his left side crushed and his left arm severed, having evidently been struck and run over by a train some time previously. No one witnessed the accident, and no one could say how long he had lain beside the track.

The man was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. M. D. Delaney, who administered blood transfusions, but he had lost so much blood that he failed to rally, dying about an hour after arriving at the hospital. He is survived by his mother, brothers and sisters, who live at 320 North Patrick street. He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery Tuesday.

News has been received here of the death Saturday, in a hospital in Tucson, Ariz., of Capt. Louis Nelson Duffey, World War veteran, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Duffey, of 203 South Fairfax street, Alexandria.

Capt. Duffey had been in ill health for a long time, and several years ago removed to Arizona, where he engaged in the practice of law. He was at one time deputy clerk of the corporation court here, and while so employed he studied law and was admitted to the bar. At the outbreak of the World War he was United States commissioner, but when the Alexandria Light Infantry was called into the Federal service he was first lieutenant of the company and accompanied it to Anniston, Ala., where his regiment, the 116th Infantry, trained for overseas service. He went with his command to France, and shortly after arriving there was promoted to captain and assigned to the duties of regimental personnel adjutant.

After the signing of the armistice, Capt. Duffey returned to Alexandria and again engaged in the practice of law, later being appointed civil and police justice of Alexandria. In 1920 he reorganized the Alexandria Light Infantry, which became a unit of the Virginia National Guard, in the First Regiment of Infantry. Following a severe spell of illness, he resigned the position of civil and police justice and moved to Arizona.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Marjorie Duffey; one son, Eldridge; his parents, and one sister, Miss Cora Duffey. No information has been received here as to funeral arrangements, which are understood to be awaiting the arrival in Tucson of the widow, who was visiting in the East when notified of his critical illness.

Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., states that active preparations are being made for attendance of local fire companies at the forty-third annual State convention of the Virginia Firemen's Association to be held at Phoebus, Va., on August 27-29, inclusive.

Local organizations will be headed by the Citizens Band and the Ladies' Auxiliary will be led by Mrs. J. W. Travers, of this city, State president of the auxiliary, and president of the local unit also. Members of the Fire Rescue Squad No. 1, of Potomac Co. No. 2, will also be in line.

The delinquent property tax sale for property on which city taxes have not been paid for the year 1929 will be held at noon today for City Collector W. R. P. Taylor. To date approximately 600 pieces of property are on the list, but can be withdrawn from sale up to within a few minutes before noon by the payment of the required tax.

Keith Forecasts Election Victory

Democratic Candidate for Congress Nomination Is Confident.

Predictions for the success of Thomas R. Keith, of Fairfax County, for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Eighth Virginia District in the primary tomorrow, were advanced last night by his supporters simultaneously with a final announcement by Mr. Keith in reference to his advocacy of a prohibition referendum.

"Notwithstanding the fact that this campaign has involved one of the most controversial questions before the people today, I have endeavored to keep the discussion on a high plane and have at all times refused to descend to personalities," he declared. "I have confined my statements with reference to other candidates to their public utterances and have made no effort to question the motives of the other candidates, although over-enthusiastic supporters of some of the candidates have endeavored to injure my candidacy by reckless misstatements.

"We have fought a good fight and every indication points to a victory at the polls on August 5. State rights is as vital and dear to the people of Virginia today as it was when it was championed by Robert E. Lee and that host of Virginians numbered among the immortals, and when the ballots are counted Tuesday it will be found that Virginia has been true to her traditions."

8-Inch Splinter Removed From Boy.

Georgetown Hospital physicians last night removed an 8-inch splinter from Willis Glidden, 10 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Glidden, of 917 Ewart street northeast, which he received while sliding down an incline on a public playground near Ballston, Va., early yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred while his mother was visiting with friends nearby.

An Invitation to the Public

To inspect this new and distinctive passenger train equipment

AUGUST 6

Again the Baltimore & Ohio makes traveling more pleasant on its trains by the addition of new and radically different passenger train equipment.

The public is cordially invited to a special exhibition of these four B. & O. train innovations.

At Union Station
On Track No. 10
Wednesday, August 6 from two until ten o'clock

AIR-COOLED DINER:

The Martha Washington, a handsomely appointed dining car of the Colonial type, equipped with an air-cooling and air-cleaning system for reducing temperature in hot weather. Dust, soot, cinders, and excessive humidity are removed from the car air. The only car on any railroad that has this modern, tested device.

RECLINING COACHES OVERNIGHT TO NEW YORK:

An exclusive B. & O. innovation for those who do not wish to travel in sleeping car berths. Individual reclining seats and foot-rests, a buffet serving light meals at reasonable cost, large smoking rooms for men and women, individual wall lights for easy reading, porter service, and other conveniences.

INDIVIDUAL SEAT DAY COACHES—IMPROVED TYPE:

This style of coach designed by the B. & O. and in use on our railroad for several years. Large double windows and individual ventilators, modern washrooms and white enameled washbowls and toilets, filtered drinking water, and many new features not found in the regular standard coach. Individual seat coaches are now in service on all B. & O. main lines.

CLUB-LOUNGE CAR:

In service on the Columbian special feature train between Washington and New York. Designed and built by the Baltimore & Ohio for this particular service. It is divided into two smoking lounges, both lounges for men and women. In each lounge there is a writing desk with stationery; library table with newspapers and magazines; settees and lounge, easy chairs; card tables and a completely equipped retiring room. This car is for the added convenience of Pullman passengers.

In addition to the above equipment, there will also be on exhibition—

A RUBBERIZED TRUCK:

Same as in all B. & O. coaches and dining cars. Each truck is equipped with 51 rubber pads—at all contact points, where the frame rests and at spring ends—wherever metal touches metal. This eliminates vibration and gives a smooth, joltless ride. The Baltimore & Ohio is the only railroad that is equipped with this latest innovation to insure greater riding ease.

* * * * *

We hope you will come to see this latest equipment which is being installed for the added comfort of our Washington passengers.

HOOVERS TO RETURN FROM CAMP TODAY

Early Start Planned After Week-End of Relaxation on Rapidan River.

TARIFF BOARD PROBLEM

Orange, Va., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—President Hoover today dismissed from his mind the perplexing problems of statecraft and devoted the Sabbath to complete relaxation in the invigorating coolness of his mountain camp.

After an early breakfast tomorrow he will return to Washington to plunge again into the task of selecting six men for the reorganized tariff commission and of determining the legality of recess appointments to the Federal Power Commission.

Attorney General Mitchell has submitted an opinion to the President on naming members of the reorganized power commission during the Senate recess, but its nature has not been disclosed.

If the opinion is favorable to recess appointments, the President is expected to name Claude L. Draper, of Wyoming; Ralph B. Williamson, of Yakima, Wash., and Marcel Garsaud, of New Orleans, as three of the five members.

No Action Taken on Names.

Their names were sent to the Senate at the special session, but no action was taken. The five civilian members will take over duties of the old commission, which was composed of three Cabinet members.

President Hoover devoted considerable time yesterday to consideration of the tariff commission personnel. This is a problem which has perplexed the President for several weeks and he is represented as having a difficult time finding the type of men he desires.

In his week-end vacations at the mountain retreat the President turns to the most simple forms of recreation. He spent today lounging around the camp chatting with friends.

In the daytime there is a rule of "every man for himself," and guests go and come largely as they please. Hikes, horseback, riding and horseshoe pitching, in all of which Mr. Hoover participates at times, are available.

Community Hall Feature.

The community hall, a large cottage furnished with chairs and tables of unpainted pine wood, is the spot where all gather at night and there the simple tastes of the President again are evident.

His favorite evening diversion is jigsaw picture puzzles. About 20 different types of these games are piled up in one corner of the hall, and almost invariably when dinner is over Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and their guests gather about the big table to hunt for pieces to match up the pictures.

Other diversions at the camp have included card playing, chess, ping pong and throwing darts the length of the room at a target. The President has not joined in chess games.

Formality is dispensed with and the President and other men at the camp roam about in clothing intended for comfort.

SPEAKERS TO BE HEARD AT UNIVERSITY INSTITUTE

Group of speakers who will be heard at the Institute of Public Affairs opening today at the University of Virginia.

CHURCH IS DEFENDED IN SOCIAL ACTIVITY

Bishop, on Eve of Institute at University, Upholds Right of Group Discussion.

MANY TO SPEAK TODAY

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 3.—The church is not to be criticized for taking part as a church in the discussion of public questions, declared Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, in an address tonight on "Religion and Public Affairs," at a vesper service preliminary to the opening tomorrow of the fourth annual session of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia.

"The church has as much right to discuss public questions as has any individual," said the bishop. "The utterance may be below the moral level of some individual utterances, and it may be far above the level of other individual utterances. Whether the utterance, however, be low or high, unwise or wise, the church is acting entirely within its rights in the proclamation of its social ideals.

"The presumption is that the utterances will be higher, not, indeed, than those of some single exalted genius, but than those of the ordinary individual taken in his ordinary relationship. Prophecy, in the high sense, is one of the main duties of any church which lays claim to moral leadership."

Institute Opens Today.

The institute proper will get under way tomorrow morning, when round table conferences will be opened. There will be three of these—one on the administration of public business, another on business and government, and a third on national country life questions. That on the administration of public business will be led by Dr. Thomas H. Reed, professor of political science at the University of Michigan.

Clarence A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, will discuss the round table on business and government, and among the speakers tomorrow morning will be Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and Dr. Emory Q. Hawk, of Birmingham-Southern College, whose subject will be, "Is Business Efficient?"

The round table on national country life questions will be presided over by Dr. C. J. Galpin, of the division of farm population and rural life, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. Speakers tomorrow will be Mrs. John C. Campbell, of the Folk School, at Brasstown, N. C., and Nat T. Frame, of the University of West Virginia.

Labor Leader to Speak.

At the first open forum at 11 o'clock, Victor A. Olander, who has been appointed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to represent the organized workmen at the institute, will speak on "The Iniquity of Injunctions."

Tomorrow night will see the formal opening of the institute, with addresses of welcome by Gov. John Garland Pollard, President Edwin A. Alderman and Dr. Charles G. Maphis, director of the institute. The exercises will be followed by a reception to members and invited guests at the Colonnade Club.

"The glory of all religion is, so far as its relation to society is concerned, the lofty moral quality of its prophets," declared Bishop McConnell. "If we look at Christianity itself, and the Judaism out of which Christianity came, we see that one function of a Christian community is to aid the individual prophet of social righteousness by supplying a community which will make an audience for the prophet and a reenforcing agent of his message.

"It is treason to the spiritual ideals for which Christianity stands when the churches begin to make it hard for a social prophet to get a hearing. Of at least equal importance with this prophetic utterance of the individual is what might be called the function of corporate prophecy of the church. That is to say, the church has a right, as one of the organizations of society, to express as an organization its approval or condemnation of public policy. The State recognizes these organizations as existing in their own right. It lays down the laws which they must observe just as truly as individuals must observe laws."

Relations of Minor Groups.

Bishop McConnell declared that one of the pronounced tendencies in social thinking at the present time is that which seeks to determine the place of so-called minor groups in their relation to the large organizations of society which are called states.

"In the business world, said the speaker, "we have come to recognize that an organization like a corporation has almost a personal existence. In fact, it is looked upon in law as having an existence to the extent that it can exercise privileges which we ordinarily think of as belonging to persons. It can sue and be sued; it can assume responsibilities itself and insist upon the assumption of responsibilities by other organizations. Outside this rather narrow business realm, however, we have too long regarded the minor groups in society as merely the sums of the individuals composing them.

"Of recent years there has been a marked change in the direction of the emphasis upon the importance of the minor groups for the larger issues of social life. This realization has come partly out of our increasing knowledge of the truth that individuals acting together in an organized group are quite different from those individuals acting separately each as a solitary unit.

"When men organize together into associations of any sort the very fact that they are thus assembled together calls forth powers that originally might never manifest themselves in individual experience.

"Critics of organized religion sometimes speak of these powers as due to what they call 'crowd contagion.' Crowd contagion is indeed bad if it induces unworthy action by the crowd. It is entirely possible for a group of persons to do together something below the moral standards which each individual member of the crowd would maintain for himself, if acting alone. On the other hand, it is equally possible for the crowd to rise to a loftier understanding and to a nobler resolution than could the individuals acting asparately. • • • A church is, or ought to be, so closely interwoven through the devotion of the individual members to the ecclesiastical community that it takes on new powers when it acts thus as an organism."

King George's Aunt Improving.

HOOVER DEMOCRATS SHIFTING TO SMITH

5,0000 Reported Signing Carolina Petition for Former Governor to Run.

PARTIES ARE PUZZLED

Areport that more than 5,000 Hoover Democrats of North Carolina have signed a petition urging Alfred E. Smith to be the Democratic candidate for President in 1932 has puzzled leaders of both major parties, whomaintain at the same time that they now have knowledge of the alleged petitions.

Stories about these petitions come from responsible sources, but those who tell them always insist that their names must not be used. Some even assert that they have seen the petitions, while others merely say that they have heard about them from reliable informants. At any rate, the reports have reached the national headquarters of both major parties here and have been taken seriously enough to bring about quiet investigation.

For once, the Republican and Democratic party chiefs are in harmony. Both are hopeful that the reports may turn out to be unfounded, although their respective hopes are based on divergent reasons.

G. O. P. Sees Slap at Hoover.

The Republicans hope it isn't so because such a development would be a slap at the Hoover administration, coming from one of the States that broke away from the solid South tradition to vote for the President in 1928.

Incidentally, North Carolina is one of the very few Southern States in which Republican strategists have been inclined to hope for better things Republicanism has assumed respectable size in that State, and tehy hope nothing will happen to neutralize the boost the party received in 1928.

The Democrats, while appreciating the good intentions of the North Carolina Hoovercrats—assuming the reports to be true—are inclined to question the latter's good judgment politically. Also there is a tendency to feel that it is just too good to be true.

Wounds lef from the 1928 campaign are healing in the South, some of the Democrats say, recalling that the Hoovercrats have been trounced in North Carolina, Virginia, Texas and Florida, and it is good strategy to forget about what happened as soon as possible. Since the split originated because of differences of opinion as to Gov. Smith's personal attitude, it is suggested it will not promote harmony now to bring the latter's name forward. By 1932 the situation may be different, some say, but just now—well, why bring that up?

Neither Party Wants Issue Stirred.

Discussion of the North Carolina reports resembles current conversation about the weather in that nobody has anything definite in the way of suggestions as to what should be done about it. For the time being, neither party wants to stir up the Smith issue.

The Republicans realize that their administration is none too popular just now, with what farm relief missing and the tariff act subjected to widespread attack.

The Democrats prefer to concentrate their efforts on the 1932 elections in which Smith is not a candidate, rather than engage in shadowboxing affair involving the possibility that he might run in 1932. Meanwhile, the North Carolina story continues to circulate, believe it or not.

MISSING STUDENT'S MOTHER IN CAPITAL

create any alarm until a week later; friends at the college thought he had gone to visit his mother. The error was discovered when a postcard arrived at the professor's house from Mrs. Moorer, addressed to the boy, and asking him why he did not write.

Brilliantly and widely read, young Moorer graduated from high school in Asheville last year and went straight to the university. His mother says that he was "too clever" and she believes now that his brilliancy induced the mental disorder that sent him astray. Young Moorer is slender, 6 feet in height, weighs about 142 pounds and has bright black eyes and dark hair. He holds his head slightly to one side when he walks and talks. There is a slight scar above his left eye, severing the eyebrow. His mother says that this scar could only be seen on close inspection.

The youth in New Haven who, authorities believe may be Moorer, has given his name as Luther Hiney and tells police that he has been in Asheville and other North Carolina cities, but can't remember where he lives. Mrs. Moorer has sent added information and pictures to New Haven, anad is anxiously awaiting a reply. If New Haven authorities are still convinced that they have located Moorer, the mother will go there.

ZUTA GANG MURDER BLAMED ON WOMAN

Leader of Vice Syndicate Called One by Phone Before Slaying.

LINGLE KILLING TALLIES

Chicago, July 3 (A.P.).—Officials investigating the assassination of Jack Zuta, who trafficked in women, today were agreed the wily head of the Moran-Aiello vice syndicate had come to his death through the same medium.

With revenge for the slaying of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, generally accepted as the motive, authorities have uncovered evidence indicating that it was a woman who put Zuta "on the spot."

Zuta telephoned an unidentified woman in Chicago frequently, they have established, and made the last call shortly before his scheduled departure for a summer camp in Delafield, Wis., was blocked by the bullets of an execution squad.

Two groups of gangsters were in the general vicinity of Zuta's hideout, detectives ascertained, and presumably they moved into slay Zuta when the mystery woman informed them of the vice chief's intended retreat.

One of Zuta's calls to Chicago was traced to a Mrs. Laura Nelson at a North Side address. She was questioned yesterday and released. When police sought to take her into custody again on later information, she had fled.

Meanwhile, Pat Roche, member of the commission investigating the Lingle murder, announced he believed the blonde gunman who shot Lingle to death June 9 in a crowded railroad runway was in the group that ended Zuta's long career in extra-legal activities.

Descriptions given by witnesses to both assassinations tallied in detail.

Roche's theory holds Zuta employed the gunner to kill Lingle because he had used his police department influence in harrying the Zuta North Side organization.

The gunman, Roche believes, feared Zuta would turn informer under police interrogation and decided to eliminate him.

Police tonight expressed belief that Solly Vision, whom Zuta put in as a collector for the Moran gang in place of Ted Newberry, may also have been slain. He is among the missing, authorities said, along with Albert Bratz, whose car Zuta was using in Wisconsin.

Four suspects, three men and a woman, were arrested in Milwaukee for questioning in connection with the slaying. Police refused to reveal the names, but said they believed one possessed valuable information.

FISH ARE DYING OUT IN SHRUNKEN RIVERS

fish life everywhere, and has drawn forth all the efforts of the State and national protective organizations in an effort only partially successful in saving the stocks.

"All of the cold water game fish, such as trout, began to show signs of stress weeks ago. As the temperatures of their brooks and streams ran up, there were wholesale endeavors to seine them out and transfer them to greater streams where they might live. This has been done in several States, but naturally only part of the stocked waters could be so treated by hasty emergency organizations, and many of the less known streamlets will be found barren in coming years.

"The actual dropping of the water levels in lakes and rivers everywhere has played havoc with other fish tribes. As the shortage continued, the spring-fed hatcheries of the Federal and State Governments began to suffer. Temperatures of the water supply ran so high that the game fish broods maintained at several places are in danger. We are now considering the transfer of the harassed stock of one of our establishments in West Virginia, where the situation is becoming desperate, in order to save some of it.

"Then as the shrunken rivers have been unable to keep their levels up, further and further into the land around all our sea coasts, to the damage and discomfort of all fresh water fish. Some of the marine species are being encountered inland at record distances; crabs, for instance, are being commercially taken within twenty miles of Washington, as the Pololosing its freshwater character and tomac River in its lower reaches is becoming an arm of the sea.

"I wouldn't attempt to estimate what the cost has been; we may not know until in succeeding years the the size of the surviving fish stocks makes itself known. Along the Pacific Coast, the salmon catch is turning out to be less in total than it has for many years; but that is probably not a drought incident. How the drought will affect the reproduction of the species for future years we do not know.

"Nevertheless, the probably hopeful pushing ahead with its five-year plan for enlarging hatchery establishments. That organization will come to usefulness at a most opportune moment."

U. S. Officer Succumbs To Wounds in Nicaragua

Managua, Nicaragua, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Lieut. Norman Gregg Freeman of the Nicaraguan National Guard, wounded in a brush with followers of the insurgent leader Sandino recently, died last night.

Lieut. Freeman, who had been a sergeant in the U. S. Marines before becoming an officer in the Guard was shot through the left lung. At first it had been believed that he was out of danger, but pneumonia set in and caused his death. The officer was from Galion, Ohio. His next of kin is his father, Henry L. Freeman.

Woman Eludes Guards; Leaps 18 Floors to Die

Chicago, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Marjorie Gilbert, 36, wife of an official of the National Lock Co. of Rockford, Ill., plunged to her death from the eighteenth floor of an apartment building today.

Mrs. Bessie Beach, a half sister, told police Mrs. Gilbert recently suffered a nervous breakdown and had been under restraint. She eluded guardians this morning and leaped from the apartment window. Harold B. Gilbert, the woman's husband, was in Delavan, Wis., when notified of her death.

Two Die in Speakeasy; Proprietor Is Arrested

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A proprietor of an alleged speakeasy in Harlem was arrested early today on a charge of homicide after two men died in his place from the effects of poisonous liquor. Police alleged the men purchased the liquor from Dick Geratano, the proprietor, and died almost immediately after quaffing it.

There were seven others in the party with Peters and Reichel, police said, but they had not touched their drinks before the other two men collapsed and fell to the floor.

ThrongViews R-100 At Quebec Airport

Crowd Estimated at From 150,000 to 200,000 Sees Craft.

St. Hubert Airport, Quebec, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A crowd, estimated at from 150,000 to 200,000 arriving by every form of conveyance, today viewed the British dirigible R-100 as she swung at her mooring mast in a sun-swept field.

The greatest influx of visitors in the history of the airport clogged nearby thoroughfares and thronged the field throughout the day. Special trains brought hundreds of persons from distant points.

In the midst of the bedlam three riggers continued their work of repairing the rent in the fabric of the port stabilizing fin. The new panel, prepared in Montreal, probably will be in place by Wednesday night, officials said.

An announcement is expected tomorrow night on the itinerary of the airship before she leaves for home. The proposed flight to Ottawa on August 6 has been postponed, but efforts are being exerted to insure later visits to Canadian cities.

leading to her death three days later early Friday morning.

The day passed quietly yesterday at the Johnson home, where many grief-stricken friends of the family and admirers of the famous baseball player called to express their sympathy. The Big Train, momentarily broken in his sorrow, maintained an unceasing vigil beside the casket, where he has kept watch since the body was returned to the home. His first act was to smooth out the hair of his wife in the fashion in which she always wore it.

While Johnson and his 15-year-old namesake son mourned their loss, their mother's death was broken to the four smaller children, 4-year-old Barbara, 7-year-old Caroline, 9-year-old Robert and 12-year-old Edwin.

PRIMARY FAULTS.

Senator Gerald P. Nye is skipping about the country investigating the "lavish use of money" in primary campaigns. He has had no trouble in establishing the fact that in most States a nomination costs money. In some cases several hundred thousand dollars have been spent for that distinction, and in others, the cost has been negligible. But in general the findings of the campaign inquiry committee suggest that in populous States a successful campaign must be backed up by somewhat of a fortune.

Campaigns were not so expensive before the direct primary came into vogue. Under the convention system the aspiring candidate did not have to convince so many constituents of his ability and statesmanship. Now he must appeal to every voter in his party, and that costs money. This is one defect of the direct primary, that was apparently not foreseen by the reformers who secured its adoption in 45 of the 48 States.

With 20 States holding senatorial primary elections between the middle of July and the end of September, and with Senator Nye probing ever deeper into the use of money for political influence, the States will no doubt do a good deal of reflecting on their reform achievements in the next two months. In fact, some States have already repented their action. Idaho and New York have reestablished the convention method of nominating candidates for a considerable number of offices. A study by the National League of Women Voters reveals that during a single year nineteen States initiated movements for repeal of their direct primary laws. Some of them very nearly succeeded, but for the most part sentiment against the direct primary has not gained sufficient strength for its overthrow. A few States that have not previously discovered its deficiencies through experience have recently adopted direct primary laws by referendum.

The direct primary system was evolved to take nominations out of the hands of political bosses. Under the convention system slates arranged by the invisible powers were submitted to the delegates for ratification, as it were. The delegates really had little to do with the selection of party standard-bearers. This gave rise to a popular demand that the whole membership of a party be allowed to choose its candidates, and the direct primary followed.

Before the direct primary was given a thorough trial it was impossible to see that if a select group attending a political convention could not control nominations it would be impossible for the entire membership of a political party to do so. Instead of selecting slates for the conventions, the invisible powers now select them for the primaries. In theory the primary offers any member of the party an opportunity to seek office, but the heavy expenses involved make political aspirations a luxury.

To say that the direct primary has failed is to deal in generalities. It has not cured many abuses for which it was prescribed. It has opened the door to new abuses. Politics is still controlled by small groups, and doubtless will continue to be. The people as a body are but little interested in political affairs. Since leadership is essential, greater progress might be made by encouraging a higher type of leadership, instead of trying to diffuse political control. The first step is to recognize the wide discrepancies between theory and practice. When the States learn that little can be accomplished by adopting theoretical panaceas there is ground for hope that they will cast them aside and give attention to the game of politics as it is actually played.

UNCOVER THE FACTS!

In lifting the embargo against pulpwood from Soviet Russia the Treasury Department has not relinquished its determination to enforce that section of the tariff act prohibiting the importation of goods made by convict labor. The ban was removed because the only evidence the Treasury had to support its case was "conflicting and inconclusive." The Treasury is continuing its investigation and the controversy will doubtless be revived.

This action was similar to that taken in connection with the temporary embargo on Soviet lumber. Treasury officials were unable to prove that either the pulpwood or lumber shipped to this country were products of convict labor, and therefore gave the importers the benefit of the doubt. It is not denied that political prisoners are forced to work in the lumbering and mining trades of Russia; but agents of the Soviet in this country contend that such products are not being shipped to the United States.

The future policy of the Government in regard to these imports will doubtless turn upon the facts yet to be uncovered. Since the United States has no diplomatic relations with the Communist regime in Moscow, those facts will be difficult to obtain. But the law specifically directs the Secretary of the Treasury to prescribe such regulations as may be necessary for the enforcement of this embargo provision. It is not to be supposed that the Treasury will let the matter drop because it can not at this time prove that the law is being violated. In the interest of protecting American industry and labor, the investigation ought to extend to the products of all Soviet industries in which convict labor is being used.

NEW POSTOFFICES.

A special senatorial committee will soon inaugurate an investigation of the so-called postoffice lease scandal. Whatever may be its findings, one fact will stand out: The $17,000,000 a year that the Postoffice Department now pays for rentals is entirely too much. The annual rent for the Van Buren Street Station in Chicago is $360,000, and the sums paid for the use of buildings in New York, Philadelphia, Newark and other cities are almost as large.

Postmaster Brown is prepared to recommend that the Government, in order to save these sums, erect its own buildings in the large cities where buildings now are leased. His recommendation, if it is adopted, necessarily will mean a reduction in the amount available for new postoffice construction in small towns and villages.

Congressmen representing rural communities and smaller cities may possibly fight the recommendation. Postoffices have enabled many a man to retain his seat in Congress. If a given sum is available for postoffice construction, it will have far more effect on elections if it is distributed for the construction of 50 small postoffices than if it were utilized for the construction of 5 large offices. Economy, however, demands that the offices for which large rentals are being paid be replaced by Government-owned offices and that smaller offices get along for the time being in their present quarters.

RESTRICTING AMERICAN CARS.

The talk of the imposition of a "quota system" to govern the importation of American automobiles by European countries need not be taken too seriously. The project was broached a year or so ago, but fell through, and now, it is said, a modified proposal has been advanced and discussed in deepest secret by representatives of the various nations that would be affected thereby. Briefly, it is proposed that each country shall impose quota restrictions governing the number of automobiles produced by other states that may be imported. Thus Germany might fix on a quota of 1,000 cars, whereupon the United States and any other manufacturing nation would have the right to ship 1,000 cars to Germany each year. The United States, of course, would be hardest hit by such a scheme, inasmuch as many more cars of American make are sold in Europe each year than of all other foreign makes combined.

American cars enjoy wide popularity abroad because they are generally more satisfactory than the product of European factories. They sell in competition with European-produced cars despite the fact that relatively heavy import duties must be paid on them. In most European countries the Ford, for example, sells in large numbers at a price higher than that of the low price domestically produced cars because it is sturdy, comparatively powerful, long lived and generally satisfactory. The virtues of the American car as compared with the European are such as to make any proposals for boycotting them impracticable.

If Europe were producing cars as satisfactory as the American, it might be possible to impose restrictions limiting the importation of the latter. If Europe had been able to produce motion pictures as satisfactory as the American, the various restrictive schemes that were under discussion for several years might have been put into effect. But the European audience was not satisfied with domestically produced pictures; it demanded American films and its demands were largely responsible for the breakdown of the film restriction schemes. Europeans will not be satisfied unless they can obtain American cars and they will not permit their governments to impose restrictions on their importation.

ADULT EDUCATION.

Dr. Robert E. Raup, professor of the philosophy of education at Columbia University, gave expression in a recent address to a thought that is steadily gaining recognition. "Our public school system," he said, "is based on the false belief that the education of children and of young people can provide a guarantee for a desirable quality of adult life and citizenship." It is a grave fallacy, he added, to suppose that childhood learning can prepare the individual to cope with the problems of mature life.

"The country is not spending too much in education," Dr. Raup said, "but we are deceiving ourselves by thinking that in spending this large amount of money we are getting genuine public education. Genuine public education is a matter of adults tackling the business of shaping and reshaping their present environment, and becoming masters of themselves in the process." This is more than a plea for adult education. Dr. Raup pictures children trying to imbibe learning that can only be mastered by adults. Thus training is wasted on them in youth, and when they reach maturity the learning process is brought to a halt.

This picture is unquestionably exaggerated; yet it contains a very poignant criticism. The schools are making excellent progress in fitting their curricula to the capacities of their pupils, but the education of the average adult still ends before he reaches maturity. This deficiency is also taken care of to some extent by the growth of adult education movements. Thousands attend night, afternoon or summer schools, but compared with the total adult population the number is negligible.

Under present conditions it appears necessary to look beyond the schools for agencies of adult education. Dr. Raup mentions the newspapers, magazines, motion pictures, advertisements and public forums. He might have added the radio, literature, museums and travel. But education that comes from these sources is casual and unsystematic. It often ignores fundamentals. Some source of education that will definitely center the attention of adults on their problems as such is needed.

If learning is confined to childhood, one's attitude toward life is essentially distorted. The world is moving so rapidly that under no circumstances can a person leave school with the feeling that he has learned all that he will need to know. If leisure time becomes more plentiful, as economists say it will, systematic adult education will be substantially facilitated.

NEW ENGLAND SOIL

From the Boston Transcript.

Some who have read the recent republications of the writings of the early settlers in Massachusetts—the words of Winthrop, of Bradford, of Thomas Morton and others—may have been surprised by the frequent panegyrics in those writings of the quality of the soil, and their accounts of rich and spontaneous production. "The most fruitful land on earth," these original settlers called the hinterland of Salem, of Boston and Plymouth. The Massachusetts Bay region was universally described as a region where the earth had only to be tickled with the hoe to laugh with the harvest. In recent literature we are not accustomed to read of any such luxuriance. On the other hand, we hear only of the sterile soil of New England—of our stern and rock-bound coast, and our sandy or stony farms where a scanty crop is wrung from barren fields. Reading these old glowing accounts of assumed fertility, the present generation may be inclined to wonder whether those old fellows were the smooth real estate agents of their time, seeking to sell their easily acquired acres at a good rise to no less easily beguiled purchasers in old England.

The founders of the Commonwealth must be acquitted of any such selfish propaganda. The simple fact is that the founders were right at the time they landed, but their praise of Massachusetts Bay soil rested on the excellence of the thin mold which the forest had been making for centuries; and when that surface mold was exhausted by a few years of cultivation, the soil was found to be anything but rich. Already, by the year 1630, the Pilgrims of Plymouth had, so to speak, got down to hard pan with their hopeful agricultural operations; they had skimmed the forest mold from the surface, and were raising corn only by the aid of the carcasses of alewives caught in Plymouth Bay and planted in each hill of maize. Their younger men were pushing back into the swampy country at the back of Plymouth and Duxbury, where now are the towns of Pembroke, Halifax, Hanson, East Bridgewater and Abington, where a richer soil was to be found, but with laborious drainage. It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that a hundred years of cultivation had reduced the "fruitful" Massachusetts Bay and Plymouth colonies of the first settlers to a bed of gravel. And by that time the best farmers of the colony had scattered themselves through the Connecticut and Merrimack valleys, and certain promising regions of Maine, in search of richer fields.

The logical proceeding, in every country, when superficial cultivation has thus exhausted the primitive goodness of the soil, is to turn in and make the soil rich again with fertilization. To some extent this process has taken place in New England, particularly with the growth of the dairying industry. A dairying country need not fear the exhaustion of its soil. But in New England's case the recovery of the soil was checked by the settlement of the rich lands of the West, and the competition of a more favored region. The present writer has seen, in southwestern Iowa, a black, alluvial or prairie-mold soil which goes down, without the loss of a unit of energy, to a depth of fifteen feet. What New England field could compete with that? But a new day, we are sure, has dawned for New England agriculture. Means of fertilization are soon to be offered to us which will turn sterile land into fertile. We shall recover our lost nitrogen from the air. There is no reason in nature why the day should not return that will once more justify the old Puritan governor's statement that "the earth here be very fertile."

CHECKERS AT CONEY ISLAND.

Checkers, sport which the movies invariably portray as being played by two rustics on a board over a cracker barrel in a village store, has suddenly reached the status of a "house game" at the booths in Coney Island, where New York's millions seek diversion. What is more astonishing, says the St. Louis Post Dispatch, is the way city dwellers hand over their dimes at the booths bearing placards, "Ten cents a game, lose or draw—free if you win."

So, for 10 cents a game, the metropolitan takes his lessons from the "house men," bucking their variable ability instead of the fixed percentages of other games of chance and skill. The intricacies of the Bristol Cross and the Ayshire Lassie opening, the danger of falling into the Goose Walk, the giving of one man to get three and the forming of one combination after another have a restful appeal for the many evening bridge victims who trump the partner's trick or fail to take the partner out. And then, too, 10 cents a game for relaxation and a chance to get one's money back beats $10 a lesson on how to make the most of an eight of clubs on a no-trump bid.

MIND AND WILL.

The will is life's rudder,
God grant it be strong;
It must hold us in safty
And steer us from wrong.

The mind is the pilot
That chooses the way;
As the rudder is turned
So the ship must obey.

The eye of the pilot
The channel must see,
Responsive and faithful
The rudder must be.

Not enough is the pilot's
Great knowledge and skill,
To come to safe harbor
Requires strength of will.

'Gainst storms of disaster
And reefs ocean rolled,
In fog and in tempest
The rudder must hold.

The man is the vessel,
The mind sees the way
To peace and safe harbor—
The will must obey.

The Heat Is Much Less Oppressive to One Who Can't Read a Thermometer

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN I was a small boy, a traveling horse doctor came to our town and made headquarters at one of the livery stables.

I was one of an admiring throng that watched him pull teeth one morning, and the thing that impressed me most was not his strength and skill but the apparent indifference of the horses.

I recalled the scene during the early days of the great war when I saw a motion picture of a Russian dentist extracting the defective teeth of peasant recruits.

He moved with the deft precision of a hen picking up corn, and his victims—great, stupid looking creatures with clipped polls—set with their jaws spread wide until most of their molars were yanked out, and then grinned and did a jig step to show how little they had suffered.

I don't know about horses, but I do know that all men have nerve systems much alike and suffer similar pains when their nerves are tampered with.

One man who has a tooth pulled suffers just as much as another; one broken leg hurts just as much as another; one man's aching head feels much like every other head that aches.

How, then, do you account for the evident fact that some people seem to suffer more than others?

Does one man bellow because he is a calf and another sit quiet because he is a hero?

In some instances, perhaps; but all of us react to stimuli in much the same way, and as a rule the man who groans most is suffering most.

His pain isn't greater, but his imagination is.

The horse and the Russian peasant felt the actual pain and no more; the "high-strung" and sensitive man suffers the same pain, but it seems more terrible to him because he is more keenly aware of it—as he is more keenly aware of everything.

The "faith-cure" people—now called psychologists—are on solid ground. When they soothe the patient's imagination, he finds it easy to endure the actual pain that is left.

Those with delicate sensibilities suffer needlessly. Control of their imagination will give relief, as a small boy's toothache is relievd by a passing circus parade.

TOM THUMB GOLF AND THE THEATER.

Tom Thumb or demi-tasse golf has become such a rage in this country that the big amusement interests are going after a slice of the profits. The Fox Theaters Co. announces a plan to convert a number of its houses into de luxe tabloid golf links. If the idea goes over in a big way the theaters of America may reecho with the groans of customers who have just dubbed a shot from the orchestra pit to the mezzanine floor, and the cheers of those who have made the entire trip from the box office to the stage in par.

• • • •

Some of the Fox theaters are to be made into eighteen-hole indoor golf courses, with the players teeing off in the lobby, pursuing the ball through all parts of the house and stopping at the boxes for supplies and refreshments.

• • • •

If the public takes to indoor Tom Thumb golf the way it has taken to the outdoor game, the theater magnates of 1931 will be in competition with one another to see which can trap his theater in the sportiest manner.

• • • •

The outdoor tabloid links are producing an army of new golfers every 24 hours. When the cold weather comes, these addicts will turn to the indoor courses, the showmen expect. Already golf course architects are going over scores of theaters and planning to replace orchestra seats with mental hazzards.

September will find a sand trap where the box office once stood, a bunker on the site of the ladies' lounge and a water carry where the candy counter used to stand.

• • • •

People have gone so golf crazy that they will probably leap at the chance to play a ball out of a bad lie behind a bass drum, hunt for a lost ball under the house manager's desk and try a mashie-niblick shot from between the head usher's feet to the proscenium arch.

• • • •

Everything will be all right unless the management allows those boys in the top gallery to use their driving irons for shots down into the parquet circle.

• • • •

Golf began in this country as a novelty, it developed into a body builder, grew into a popular pastime and has now become a national menace.

• • • •

Mother carries a niblick when she goes shopping, father never goes for his evening stroll without a couple of irons, and the kiddies won't go to bed until they have tested out their skill with a putter.

LINES AFTER PARTICIPATING IN A YACHT RACE.

A yacht race is a thrilling sport
That makes the spirits glow;
I know it for when it was o'er
The skipper told me so.

It puts a tingle in the veins
And makes the blood run red;
A sporting feast it is, at least
That's what the skipper said.

All afternoon we sailed and sailed
And how my senses stirred!
The race was grand, for understand,
I have the skipper's word.

I never had so great a time,
It moved my soul to song;
It was a treat I ne'er can beat—
Unless the skipper's wrong!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Guest Suits" Constitute a New Racket That Should Be Curbed by Legislation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Seven States have passed laws to curb the practice of filing "guest suits," in which automobile owners and drivers are sued by their motoring guests for damages resulting from accidents. Most of the new laws, as summarized in a recent news story, provide that such free-riding guests shall not be entitled to recover from their host for accident damage unless the latter causes such accident intentionally or by gross negligence or willful misconduct. A Connecticut statute to this effect has been upheld as constitutional. Similar legislation is being urged in other States where "guest suits" are said to be multiplying rapidly and threatening to attain the proportions of an industry.

There are entirely too many cases of motor guests bringing suit against their hosts when any type of accident occurs, and this type of suit should certainly be abolished when the accident was unavoidable. Why should the driver who is being kind to his guest be subject to suit when an accident occurs in which, often, the driver and the guests are injured? It should be made clear that the riders in the car are participating in the ride at their own risk and not at the risk of the driver, unless, of course, the driver willfully and intentionally causes injury to his guests. I think that it would be a fine thing for all States to adopt the statute which Connecticut has pertaining to this matter of "guest suits." ALFRED SANDBOY.

Here's a Way to Promote Municipal Cleanliness, to Do Away With Taxes and, Perhaps, to Help Impecunious Policemen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As New York desired to learn better ways to dispose of municipal waste, Dr. George Soper, sanitary engineer, took a trip abroad to learn a few things regarding cleanliness from European cities. Upon his return, Dr. Soper told newspaper correspondents that anybody in Munich who drops a tiny piece of paper like a bus ticket in the street is told courteously by a policeman to pick it up and put it into one of the refuse baskets.

The offender must pay the policeman a German mark, the equivalent of 25 cents, for this bit of education in municipal tidiness. It is not regarded as a fine for the policeman is not privileged to impose fines, it is merely the cost of the policeman's service. In other words this bit of advice which is purely a matter of common sense costs the offender one mark. Dr. Soper said that it appeared to him that neither the citizen nor the policeman seemed to take the matter as cause for resentment. It is a recognized fact that it is the duty of the policemen to help keep the city clean. If such a system were adopted throughout the United States, the Treasury would be filled to overflowing through 25-cent contributions and Uncle Sam would be able to abolish all taxes, that is for a while at least. I wonder if it costs a mark to throw a cigarette butt on the street in Munich? The penalty must be the same for all offenses relating to untidiness. K. W. A.

Another Raises a Voice of Protest Against the Obnoxious Vapors of Rock Creek Park.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was very much interested in the letter of Mr. Sullivan relative to the obnoxious odors emanating from Rock Creek Park. Just a week ago my son and myself sought a cooler spot than the sun-heated streets and we entered the park from the Massachusetts avenue entrance. We found it cooler, but we made a quick exit, thinking the heat above safer than the foul odors we encountered. It does seem too bad that the taxpayers' money goes to beautifying some of the enjoyable spots around Washington and then to have it wasted in an instance like this. The Public Health Service certainly should be able to correct such a condition and make this particular part of the park as desirable as any other.

Night Parking Ban Would Be Unreasonable and Unjust. It Would Cut Into the Use and Sale of Cars.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An all-night parking ban in the City of Washington would be most unjust and unreasonable.

The American Automobile Association, I am sure, has not given its approval of this money-making project. I am hoping as a citizen that through the efforts of the A. A. A. and the Automobile Dealers Association an all-night parking ban can be prevented.

The effect of the all-night parking ban will be to decrease the sale of autos, especially if the owner has to pay garage rent at night and also when he is at work.

The upkeep of the car is sufficient expense without having to pay approximately $10 a month for a garage if you have none of your own.

RAYMOND C. SCHAFFER.

Billboards Cheapen and Disgrace the Countryside and Antagonize Nature Lovers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The billboard is still prevalent along the beautiful scenic highways of the Nation. Many attempts have been made to abolish these eyesores, but they have all proved futile. For a trip, averaging $25, 400,000 landowners have let their roadside lands to signs. The $10,000,000 paid for billboard leases brings a damage to the countryside, to the communities and towns, and to America as a whole, of many hundred million. They cheapen and disgrace the towns where they are clustered.

If all large business concerns would realize the antagonism that billboards engender in nature lovers, it would not take long to abolish the billboard and thus preserve the scenic beauty of the Nation's countryside.

KENTUCKY ELECTION SURPRISE FORECAST

Judges Hint Upsets While Sealed Boxes Await Opening Today.

BALLOTS ARE GUARDED

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—For the first time after a State election, Kentuckians had nothing more to read in the newspapers this morning than that the voting in Saturday's congressional primary was unusually light. The new election law functioned smoothly. There were no disorders, and every candidate was confident he or she had win the nomination.

In accordance with the provisions of the new election law, the ballot boxes were locked at the end of the day, taken to the county courthouses and placed under guard. Tomorrow, the county election boards will begin counting the votes. The law provides that ballot not be tabulated until the next weekday after an election.

If the statements of precinct officers can be given any credence, some surprises are in store when the counting gets under way. Though the precinct officers were prohibited by the new law from touching the ballots and placed under guard. Tomorrow, after voters had marked them, the voters putting them in the boxes themselves, they were in the best position to judge, from voting booths gossip, the trend of the balloting.

The guarded ballot boxes tonight held the secret of the fate of four incument members from the National House of Representatives, all Republicans. They were J. Lincoln Newhall, opposed in the Sixth District by Mrs. Marie Baller; Robert Blackburn, opposed in the Seventh by Mrs. Minerva Allen; Mrs. Katherine Langley, opposed by two men in the Tenth, and Charles Finley, whose principal opponent in the Eleventh was Judge William Lewis.

Three Democrats, ousted in the Hoover landslide of 1928, were primary candidates—Virgil Chapman, in the Seventh District; Ralph Gilbert, in the Eighth, and Fred M. Vinson in the Ninth. Chapman was opposed by L. C. Littrell, State senator; Gilbert, by O. P. Jackson and Thomas P. Reed, and Vinson by former Gov. William J. Fields, whom he succeeded as representative, and W. C. Hamilton.

There were no party contests in five of the State's eleven districts, eliminating the necessity for primaries.

Sunday Federal Court Held to Halt Graft

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A Federal court opened on Sunday for the first time in the history of the city today and 34 alleged prohibition law violators were admitted to bail by United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter.

The Sunday court was established as a result of a decision by city magistrates to accept no bail bonds for dry law offenders over the week end on the ground that professional bondsmen were splitting their profits with policemen. Suspects arrested during week ends have been forced to remain in jail until Monday.

Couple Dead on Tracks; Murder, Suicide Is Seen

Linden, N. J., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The bodies of Henry Martels, 76, and his wife, aged 60, of Jersey Shore, Pa., were found early today on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks in front of the Linden station. Both had been shot through the head and police believe Mertels killed his wife and then turned the gun upon himself.

William Reinman, engineer of a westbound train, saw the bodies on the eastbound tracks as he brought his train into the station. A Philadelphia express train, speeding down upon the bodies, was flagged until they were removed.

Pilot Killed as Glider, Towed by Auto, Falls

San Jose, Calif., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Sawyer B. Gillstrom, 20, Oakland glider pilot, was killed today when his ship fell 50 feet while being towed behind an automobile.

Herbert La Perte, Oakland, who was driing the automobile, said the homemade glider had risen about 50 eet when he noticed r. Gillstrom was having difficulty controlling the craft. r. La Perte cut loose the tow rope immediately, he said, and the glider crashed to the ground.

Altitude Mark for Light Planes Believed Broken

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Stanley C. Hoffman, Cincinnati today climbed to an indicated altitude of 15,500 feet establishting a new altitude record for light planes, if his flight is given official recognition. The Barograph carried by Hoffman will be sent to Washington for calibration.

The previous record of 13,254 feet was held by Charles Kazala, of Poland.

Two Racing Drivers Die In Spills at Ohio Track

Greenville, Ohio, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The second death of the day at the Greenville motor speedway concurred late today when H. W. Linebaugh, 34, of Knoxville, Tenn., lost control of his racing car and was crushed beneath it.

Kenneth C. Louder, 25, of Dearborn, Mich., was killed earlier in the day while warming his car for the races.

Broken Ankle Leads Way Into Talkies for Actress

Miriam Hopkins, petite, pretty and from Savannah, Ga., is making her first talkie and playing on Broadway at the same time. A broken ankle led to her departure for New York.

Miss Hopkins Makes Film and Plays on Broadway at Same Time.

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Plenty of girls are breaking their necks to get into the talkies.

Miriam Hopkins broke her ankle.

Miriam's home was in Savannah, Ga., and she was getting ready for a trip to South America when she slipped and the dainty pin cracked.

"If I'd gone on that trip I don't know whether I'd be making this picture or not," she says.

She didn't go and an uncle got her to come to New York. Soon she was in the "Music Box Revue" and other Broadway shows.

She has the featured role in the picture she is making. "The Best People," her first. At the same time she has an important role in "Lysistrata," on Broadway.

"That keeps me going from about 8 in the morning until at least 11 p. m." she says.

She's blonde, blue-eyed, weighs 100 pounds, stands 5 feet 3 inches tall and has only one ambition—to be a good actress.

And for three years she's been Mrs. Austin Parker.

World Powers Compete For Dollars of Tourists

European Nations Vie for Patronage of Americans, Although Overland Migration Is Greater, 16,350,000 Having Crossed Into Canada Last Year.

Tourism has become a leading industry in several important countries of the world. The effort to attract foreign tourists, especially Americans, is no longer left to private agencies, but governments are spending large sums to assist in getting the millions.

Herbert M. Bratter, of the finance and investment division, Department of Commerce, points out that the migration that annually crosses and recrosses the North Atlantic vies in size with some of the great migrations of history.

The overland migration is vastly greater. It is estimated that approximately 16,350,000 Americans crossed into Canada in 1929 to pass hours, days or months, and spend enough money to make the Canadian tourist industry a leading source of income. More than 25 per cent of America's tourist expenditures go to Canada, according to Mr. Bratter. The total net expenditures in 1927 are placed at $729,000,000. Canada's share of this total was $170,00,000. Canada's gross total for last year is estimated by Dr. Ray Hall at $289,000,000, but a considerable slice must be cut from this figure to arrive at the net, not yet estimated.

In Cuba the foreign tourist trade, chiefly American, is on a par with the tobacco industry, being exceeded in value only by the sugar crop.

Tourism is no less important in Europe. Professional hospitality is yielding large sums to Germany, France, Italy, Switzerland and other countries. In Switzerland tourism is the main industry and chief source of income.

"So important do the French consider this traffic," Mr. Bratter states, "that they are reported to have appropriated over $1,200,000 for advertising abroad the beauties and attractions of 'La Belle France,' while Germany, it is said, spends even more for tourist publicity.

"The promotion of tourism is now rarely left to private effort alone, but is more and more recognized as a matter for official attention. The effort of touring clubs, automobile associations, Alpine clubs and the like, supported by chambers of commerce, hotels, railroads and steamship lines now receives official encouragement if not actual financial support. From Chile to Russia, from Spain to Japan the tourist finds official welcome. He encounters national tourist offices and information bureaus to expedite his travels and make his stay as pleasant as possible."

St. Louis Plane Nears Record in Refueling

St. Louis, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The endurance plane Greater St. Louis was within less than ten days of establishing a new refueling record as it continued to circle lazily over Lambert-St. Louis Field today. At 4:11 p. m., Central standard time, the plane had been aloft 321 hours.

The pilots, Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, communicated with the field today, a transmitter having been installed this morning. A receiving set is to be installed later. Hereafter the fliers plan to communicate with the ground crew each hour, transmitting their orders for fuel and other supplies by radio instead of by dropping notes.

STOCK SALES FINISH WEEK AT LOW LEVEL

Drop on Wednesday Proves to Be One of Sharpest During Summer.

DECLINE'S BOTTOM SEEN

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The stock market finally became wedged between two uncertainties last week, and bulls and bears went off on a picnic together.

The first uncertainty was a bullish one, and the second a bearish one. Bulls feared the business upturn expected during the next month or two might not come up to their sanguine hopes, while bears, on the other hand, had a disconcerting inkling that it might.

The market did not come to rest, however, until the bull leaders, who had engineered the rally from the lows of June 24, received a stunning blow on Wednesday, in the form of one of the sharpest reactions since mid-June. Trading throughout the week, however, was light, and at the end of the week was the lightest in four years, as most market operators gave up in disgust and left town for the week-end.

Since the rally reached the end of technical limits on July 18 the market has been unable to make definite progress. Twice threatened prices were driven up to those levels, only to meet overpowering selling. On Monday the index of 90 shares recorded a level slightly above July 18, but in the next two sessions it dropped 6 points, and has managed to rally only about a point since.

Efforts to bring about a decisive reaction, however, have soon petered out. After selling off a few points, the market for the past fortnight has turned extremely dull, and shorts have been unable to cover without causing a substantial rally.

Steel Reports Published.

In the meantime, much theory and little fact concerning the business prospect has been appearing. The quarterly reports of the two leading steel producers made their apearance, but were too close to Wall street estimates to influence the market. Some observers placed a highly bullish interpretation on a statement issued by the finance committee of the U. S. Steel, expressing the belief that recession in operations had ended and that output would increase during the remainder of the year.

Wall street, however, apparently takes it for granted that the bottom of the decline has been reached, since operations must now be speeded up to fill autumn requirements, but it is interested in knowing something about the scope and duration of the recovery. It learned last spring that seasonal fluctuations alone do not make recoveries.

The victory of the high tariff party in Canada was used as an excuse for considerable bear selling, as well as renewed depression in cotton and wheat. Late in the week, utilities were sold on reports of electrical power rate reductions and this group showed relatively the widest losses at the end of the week.

Credit Situation Favorable.

The banking and credit situation remained decidedly favorable, although gold continued to flow to France and Canada, some $55,000,000 having now left the country on the present movement. This, however, is only about a quarter of the gold that has come in since the beginning of the year, and stocks remain excessive.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York in its survey disclosed that one bugbear might be minimized. Country banks have been rumored for some time to be loaded up with frozen loans on security collateral. The New York Reserve Bank reported that of 118 country banks examined in this district, 92 either had no loans or a negligible amount against security collateral, the market value of which had dropped below the amounts of the loans. Only nine had from 5 to 11 per cent of their loans against inadequate security collateral.

Although the month-end turnover of funds amounted to about $600,000,000, call money did not go above 2 per cent. The amount available at concessions in the outside market, however, diminished. The weekly Federal Reserve statements showed a decrease of $19,000,000 in outstanding reserve credit and a negligible gain of $2,000,000 in brokers' loans. The reserve banks are expected to support the bull market actively during coming weeks, to help the movement of crops.

Raskob Girls Escape Injuries in Car Crash

Centerville, Md., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Miss Helena Raskob and her younger sister, Mary Louise Raskob, daughters of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, were injured today in a head-on collision between their automobile and one driven by Frank Patchatt, of Queenstown. Mr. Patchatt and his three children received minor bruises. The youngest child, Frances Hatchatt, 3 years old, was taken to the emergency hospital at Easton in a car from the Raskob estate.

The accident, which occurred on a dirt road near the entrance of Pioneer Farms, the Raskob summer home, was blamed by Miss Helena Raskob on dust, which had accumulated inches deep since the beginning of the present drought.

TREASURE TEMPLE LOOKED FOR IN BOG

Gold Ornaments Believed Buried in Aztec Ruins in Guatemala.

HIDDEN BY MONTEZUMA

Mexico City, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Stories have been revived here of an enormously rich treasure, said to have been hidden by the Emperor Montezuma before he died a prisoner of the Spanish conquerors of Mexico.

It is stated that Thomas Gann, a British archeologist, has started a second attempt to penetrate a swamp in Guatemala in whose midst the ruins of the temple are said to exist.

A story even appeared in a local newspaper that the treasure had been found, but this was denied by Jorge Beltranera, a Guatemalan writer. The latter declares that the temple is surrounded by a swamp which, for a white man, is impassable.

Beltranera's account of the treasure relates that 35 years ago Capt. John Carmichael, of the British army, saved from death an aged Indian rebel while on a punitive expedition in British Honduras. In gratitude for this the old man gave the officer a gold ornament which, he said, came from "the Temple of a Thousand Grottoes."

Carmichael's curiosity was aroused and the Indian agreed to take him to the temple, but first made him promise never to return to it nor to divulge the secret of its location.

For 25 years the officer kept his promise, meanwhile conserving a rough sketch map of the route across the swamp. Ten years ago he resolved to return to the temple, but after entering the swamp with an Indian escort was never heard from again.

A copy of the map remained in possession of Carmichael's son, now a resident of Florence, Italy. It was from him, so the story goes, that Gann got the chart for guiding his expeditions.

G. O. P. Committeeman Flies to Mexi

Mexico City, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman of Texas, arrived in Mexico City from Brownsville, Tex., by airplane this afternoon and was met at the landing field by an American Embassy car. He left soon afterward for Cuernavaca to be the guest of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow until Tuesday.

Portugal Aids Joffre Monument.

Lisbon, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Portugal today decided to contribute to the erection of a monument to Marshal Joffre in his native town of Rivesaltes, in the eastern Prenees. Subscriptions were opened for the purpose.

2½ Cents in the Dollar

Not Wall Street's idea of money making

Why has A & P more customers than any other grocer on earth? . . . "It sells for cash at the lowest price possible," answers The Business Week, a magazine that studies business methods.

And why are A & P's prices so low? . . . "It buys direct from original producers, and makes every known short cut in distribution," says The Business Week.

Then, not satisfied with other people's say-so, Business Week digs into the official record of A & P's sales and profits, and by a simple sum in arithmetic gets the rest of the story—namely, that A & P keeps only 2½ cents of every dollar taken over its counter.

"Two-and-a-half cents' profit is not Wall Street's idea of something to capitalize," says Business Week, explaining Wall Street's complete separation from so large a business enterprise as A & P. But it is A & P's idea of fair treatment of the housewife.

Mrs. Totten Sojourns in Stockholm

Wife of Army Officer Is Interested in Making of Models.

MRS. GEORGE OAKLEY TOTTEN, wife of Maj. Totten, and always an interesting figure in Washington, is passing the summer in Europe. At present she is with relatives in Stockholm, Sweden, where she and her two sons will remain until the latter part of September. Maj. Totten has received one of the appointments from the State Department to attend the International Congress of Architects in Budapest, which meets in September. If Maj. Totten goes abroad he will probably be joined by his family and return with them to Washington in the fall.

While Maj. Totten is busying himself with architecture, Mrs. Totten has made a name for herself in modeling and other forms of art. First in the line of porcelain statuettes of religious characters and later of Mother Goose people, which have been exhibited in the Corcoran Gallery and in New York. Mrs. Totten has also done busts of a number of Washington people; her friends and the children of her friends. One of the very lovely busts which she did last year is of Countess Margaret Scherr-Thoss, granddaughter of the late Henry White.

Mrs. Totten's latest venture was inspired by her small son's interest in Mother Goose characters which could be played with. These are toys made of cardboard and are jointed so they can be made into fantastic or amusing shapes. While these dolls are toys primarily, they have a decided art element, for they are painted and constructed with originality.

Mrs. Totten recently has completed text and illustrations for a child's book of fairy tales, called "The Secret of the Snowflakes." The illustrations are unique, in water colors of two tones of black, blue and white. The imaginative element of the book and pictures is what sets this charming work in a class by itself.

Miss Jane Bartlett Sojourns in Idaho.

Miss Jane Bartlett, daughter of Mrs. B. Bartlett, left the latter part of the week for Idaho, where she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald at their mountain cabin.

Miss Gertrude Bergman, librarian at the University of Maryland, will leave College Park tomorrow for a month's holiday at her home in Newton, Iowa.

Mrs. Lester J. Pollock will entertain at tea on Tuesday in the garden of the Woman's Democratic National Club, her guests being Mrs. Cora Wright Smith, Mrs. Robert K. Noble, Miss Mae Helm, and Mrs. S. B. Streeter.

Dr. Mildred W. Dickerson returned yesterday from Colorado Springs and Denver, where she attended a meeting of the American Academy of Peripontology of the Association of American Woman Dentists and the American Dental Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Cozly Byrd, recently of Bryan, Tex., who are passing the summer months in the East, motored to Columbia, S. C., recently to be guests of Mrs. Byrd's parents, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Byrd, after a visit in town with Mrs. Byrd's aunts, Mrs. William G. Hill and Miss Addie Shefer, of Rutland Courts.

Stone-Ewing Nuptials to Be Observed

Ceremony Will Be Held in Sorrento Home of Ewings.

The most important of the weddings of interest to Washington which will take place today is that of Miss Ellen Cox Ewing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ewing, of New York, to Mr. Thomas Archibald Stone, Second Secretary of the Canadian Legation and son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Stone, of Chatham, Ontario, Canada.

The ceremony will be performed at noon today in the Church of the Redeemer at Sorrento, Me., where the Ewings are passing the summer. The church was built 40 years ago by the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. William F. Cochran. The Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, will perform the ceremony. Bishop Freeman is a lifelong friend of the family and has married Miss Ewing's sister and four of her brothers.

Miss Ewing will have no attendants. Mr. Stone will have Mr. Michael Wright, Third Secretary of the British Embassy, as best man.

The wedding will be smaller than at first planned, so only a few close friends have been invited besides relatives of both families. Mr. and Mrs. Ewing sent announcements of the wedding rather than invitations to the ceremony.

A wedding breakfast will follow at the home of the bride-elect's parents at Sorrento.

Mr. Merritt Bridegroom At Nuptials

Vanderbilt U. Graduate Marries in Town of Branford.

Miss Mabel Carmichael, daughter of Mrs. Donald Carmichael, of New Haven, Conn., was married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Greyrock, Branford, Conn., the summer home of her mother, to Dr. H. Houston Merritt, jr., of Boston, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Houston Merritt, of North Carolina. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. D. Prigmore, of Centre Church, New Haven.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, John Menzie, of New Haven, Miss Carmichael had as her only attendant Miss Harriet Hughes, of New York. Dr. William R. Wilson, of New Haven, was Dr. Merritt's best man. A reception followed the ceremony.

Miss Carmichael is a graduate of Wheaton Academy. Dr. Merritt was graduated at Vanderbilt University and Johns Hopkins University Medical School.

Following a wedding trip Dr. and Mrs. Merritt will sail on August 29 for Germany. They will pass a year in Munich.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF August 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., 3 p. m. to 4:15 p. m., and 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7:15 a. m. and 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.

The world and his wife will have no need to envy other planets on this date, as astrological influences are auspicious for this plane of existence. Do not hesitate to explore new paths—you may adventure with safety. Dreams begin to come true.

The child born on this August 4 will force its way through the world, and will not allow circumstances or opposing relatives to curtail its ambitions. It will have a clever mind, will be ingenuous, and somewhat pugnacious. It will travel far and wide.

Your three redeeming attractive qualities, intelligence, liveliness and character, are more than skin deep. First, the world generally concedes that you are intelligent, and your good mind will lead you far. It opens the gate to vast vistas which can never be explored by those who are less mentally gifted. You have a responsive, lively mind, quick to grasp a point, and ready in understanding an idea. You are a stimulating, flattering companion. You put up an attractive show of resistance in an argument, but you are eager to listen to an explanation, and generous in conceding to objections. You can think, you can study, and you can work. You are a doer and not merely a dreamer of dreams.

Like other clever, lively people, you induce a sense of cleverness and liveliness in those around you. You give rather than expect admiration, although you receive it unasked. Your character and mental assets are not quick self-advertisers like looks and "smartness," may be, but they are always found out, and your charms last. You hold the affection of your friends and admirers. You do not inflict your troubles upon others. Outwardly, at least, your spirits are chronically gay. You are a very bright and cheerful companion, and not an unsympathetic one. You are good because it is not in you to be bad. You are a live wire, but not a dangerous one.

Successful people born August 4:

1—Peter Buel Porter—Secretary of War under John Quincy Adams.

2—Frederick T. Frelinghuysen—Secretary of War under Chester A. Arthur.

3—Lovell H. Rousseau—Brigadier general and criminal lawyer in Lewisburg, Ky.

4—Jesse W. Reno—Inventor—moving stairway.

5—Silas G. Pratt—Composer—popular instructor of Chicago and New York.

6—Sir Harry Lauder—Actor.

HIDE IN THE DARK

By FRANCES NOYES HART

Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

Time: All-Hallows Eve.

Place: Lady Court, an old manor house south of Washington.

Cast of Characters.

Lindy Marsden—Lonely, lovely, a dark-eyed romancist, and mistress of Lady Court.

Doug King—Hilarious and jovial, the life of every party and the founder of the March Hares.

Neil Sheridan—Sleek, dark, highly successful in his career as a lawyer and husband of—

Trudi—Wise, witty and chic, with all the ease and manner of a grand duchess and the lack of manners of a fishwife.

Chatty Ross—Small, gay, blindly adoring wife of—

Tom Ross—The least successful man in the room, shabby and sensitive among his wealthy friends.

Hanna Dart—A gentle lady, immaculately beautiful, whose reserve masks a deep affection for her husband.

Gavin Dart—A rather tired and immensely successful business man of 50, with shrewd, dark eyes and steel-gray hair.

Ray Hardy—The youngest member of the party, not long married and overwhelmingly in love with—

Joel Hardy—Her charming and irrepressible husband, who has not grown 5 minutes older in the last ten years.

Jill Leighton—Graceful and gracious stepsister of that legendary Sunny, the beloved girl, whose strange death ten years ago still lay like a shadow over the gay group.

Larry Redmond—An agreeable young banker, who can not understand why Jill hates him.

Kit Baird, wanderer and adventurer in strange lands, who, in his casual way, does every romantic thing magnificently well.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Thirteen gay revelers, calling themselves the March Hares, have gathered on Halloween at Lady Court, an old manor house. As the party gets under way, some one starts a graphophone. The record is "Underneath the Stars." Sunny's tune, Sunny herself, whom every one loved, having been drowned in Washington.

Kit entertains with a few songs. Lindy then tells him why she arranged the party. She confesses her love for him, proposes; while in another part of the house Larry proclaims his love for Jill. Outside a storm is raging, but the March Hares continue to make merry. Kit and Doug, however, quarrel when Lindy objects (for the moment) to dancing with King. The situation is saved when Lindy relates a murder story concerning early relatives who occupied Lady Court.

Cathy and Trudi review events since the last party. Lindy corners Kit again and teases him about being jealous of Doug King. Later she prepares to chant, "Mirror, mirror, dark and bright . . ."

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

"I've got the door to the service quarters locked, but there's no key to this one into the chapel and the other key won't work," announced Larry over his shoulder.

"Isn't there? No. I remember, I dropped it down the grating in the sink, trying to poke out some soap that got wedged in it. Now what——"

"Well, the only way through the chapel is that door from the service quarters that Doug fell through," said Tom reasonably. "If you lock that it cuts this room off just as well as though you locked this one. Here, Larry, you take the candle and fix the one out there. You go with him, Joel, to see that he plays fair."

"Mirror, mirror, dark and bright," hummed Lindy, pirouetting experimentally. "Children, there's too much light from the fire. Can't you break it up, Kit, and put the screen in front of it?"

The Man I'll Wed."

"All snug and fast out there," proclaimed Larry, handing back the candle. "Now, girls and boys, out into the night. All right, Lindy?"

"Oh, better than all right," came the answer.

"On our way, then. We lock these hall doors from the outside, don't we? Sing out if your ghostly cavalier makes a snatch at you, my child."

"I'll sing——"

The bright square that was the door receded slowly into the dark square that was the hall and the great room was abruptly a cave of darkness filled with strangeness and silence, save for the distant crying of the storm.

Lindy, the candle high, called clearly, "Can you hear?"

"Aye, aye!"

The gay assent pierced the walls, barely muffled.

"Mirror, mirror, dark and bright," chanted Lindy, her eyes fast on the little shield, shining and mysterious as still water——.

"Show me the man I'll wed tonight!"

The untroubled pool mirrored back only the questing eyes, the smiling lips of the singer, and she held it farther off so that it could hold nothing but darkness.

"Mirror, mirror, dark and bright. Show me the man I——"

There was a sound behind her, a stir so slight that it was hardly motion, but so distinct that it held her transfixed—the sound of a footfall on the bare floor. A voice that was scarcely a whisper said: "For God's sake, don't stop. Don't let them know I'm here. Finish it out, then over again."

• • • "I'll wed tonight!" sang the voice. "Kit, how did you find——"

"Never mind that, never mind anything but what I'm saying to you. Sing again. Don't move. Only listen."

"Mirror, mirror, dark and bright!" The clear, unwavering voice rose again obediently——

"Show me the man • • •"

"Lindy, are you listening? Who told you that I was in Baltimore with Sunny Leighton?"

She answered, docile and unswerving, her whisper matching his. "It was Doug—Doug King. Kit, why——"

She moved her hand and for a moment, blinding and illuminating as a searchlight, the candle caught the face behind her in the dark pool and the mirror slipped through her fingers with a long, shivering crash, its disastrous chimes echoing delicately through a silence more terrible than speech. Outside she could hear feet running, hands at the door and the rising clamor of voices, but she stood motionless, voiceless, candle high, staring at the glittering fragments that for one dreadful moment had caught and held his face.

A Broken Mirror.

Over that outer tumult of voices and laughter, over the inner tumult of her terrified heart, she could hear Doug's lusty impatience, strong above them all.

"The darned thing's stuck. Pull the door toward you and jerk it upward. Nothing wrong in there, Lindy?"

She lowered the candle, her eyes still on the heap of broken glass, and forced through stiffened lips a voice so lightly amused that she raised her head to listen, wondering whence it came.

"Nothing—nothing at all. The wretched thing simply slipped out of my fingers."

"You broke the mirror? Oh, Lindy, darling, how dreadful!" Chatty's wail of horrified amusement seemed to come from a great distance, but the girl who had broken the mirror shivered as though she felt a cold wind at her back.

"Let me have a go at that lock, Larry. Put your knee against it there and shove—Shove!"

The door creaked—yielded, and the bright square that was the hall swung slowly back into place. For a moment the crowding faces on the threshold caught a glimpse of the small wraith in her misty draperies, standing in a pool of flickering light with magic shattered at her feet, and the candle held before her like a shield—it flickered—wavered—went out—surrendering the room to darkness as though it were its natural heritage. Lindy, safe in the darkness, covered her face with her hands, letting the candle slip unheeded to the floor.

"Heaven, what went then? The lights are about a foot to the right of the door, aren't they? Oh, sorry; who did I get then?"

"You got me," commented Trudi bitterly. "And if it's of the slightest interest, you're the third guy that's got me in the last three seconds. Why don't you stop moving around like a mob scene and try striking a match?"

Lindy shook a desperate head. It was in the darkness that she must find the new, gay face to hide the stricken one that winced behind her fingers. . . .

"Joel—Joel Hardy, where are you?" Ray's voice reached out frantically toward his reassuring laughter.

"Right here, you little nut. I'll bet I left every blessed match upstairs in my coat, too. Hasn't any one got even a cigarette lighter?"

Kit's voice inquired amiably from the hall, "Who's crying for matches? And what's all the stampeding anyway? Trying out a new game, Doug?"

"No—an old one," Doug King replied sarcastically. "Give us a light if you've got one."

Hurry, hurry—a new face for Doug, the merry, Doug the debonair, Doug the old, old friend—Sunny's old, old friend——

"Oh, Kit, she broke the mirror, and then we couldn't unlock the door; and then Doug opened it and her candle went out and——" Chatty's jubilant recital broke off abruptly as a flame flared blue and gold against the blackness and Kit's long fingers reached easily for the switch.

Into the Storm.

Lindy was on her knees gathering the shining fragments into the square of chiffon that she called a handkerchief. Her voice rose cool and serene as a hiden spring, "Could some one get a scrapbasket? No, no, under the table. Kit, where in the world are you going with that raincoat?"

"I'm off on a rescue party. Lindy, can't we leave you alone for a minute without you getting into mischief? Seven years bad luck for little girls who throw mirrors."

"But it was such a little mirror," explained Lindy, shaking the contents of the chiffon square into the proffered basket. "And I didn't especially throw it—it slipped. You aren't going out into that storm, are you, Kit? But you simply can't!"

"Can't I, though! I'll have you know that I've just discovered that dat ole debbil wond's gone and taken my favorite steed and thrown it clear across the road against the stone wall. I'm going to get it under cover if it's the last deed I do! Where's the best place to park it, Lindy?"

There's a tool shed at the end of the service quarters round on the other side. But Kit, I do think you're mad! Did the storm really blow it over?"

"That and a few other things. This here's a storm that merits your respectful attention, my child. Cast an eye out yonder!"

"Oh, good heavens!" mourned Lindy, her eyes straining through the still tumultuous darkness. "It's one of the biggest cedars, isn't it? And the holly's down, too——oh, just look at my favorite holly by the gate!"

"Where's all this fine frenzy of haste about your precious motorcycle disappeared to?" inquired Doug.

"Still burning bright, Doug. Thanks for reminding me. See you later, won't I?"

Doug said smoothly, "I hardly see how you can avoid it. But I certainly understood that you couldn't even wait to see Lindy through her trick before you dashed up to get your raincoat and hurled yourself into the night! It isn't an optical illusion that you're still here, is it?"

"No, no, old boy——it's a credit to your powers of observation. Tool shed's on the other side, Lindy? Hold everything, everybody, when I open this window!"

He was gone, and the black wind tore by him through the great room like a wild thing, whipping the brocade curtains aside as though they were flimsy muslin, throwing the crystal chandeliers into frantic jangling, lashing flying hair and skirts and scarfs into a pandemonium of despairing shrieks and scurryings. It took Larry and Tom and Joel to swing it to and make it fast, while Jill danced like an enchanted maenad, and Chatty, spinning like a top, shouted jubilance above the storm.

The Chapel Door.

"Oh, Lindy, I do think it's too divine! Listen, couldn't we all get raincoats and dash out just for a minute? Lindy, do let's!"

"Chatty, I honestly think that every one has gone perfectly mad! I wish that some of you would burn up a little of that superfluous energy by pushing all these things against the walls; we'll simply drench them when we start after the apples," Lindy warned.

Doug lifted his voice, "Who had the keys to the chapel and this room—you, Larry?"

Larry, rolling up his shirt sleeves, answered amiably, "Have 'em now, if it comes to that. Why? D'you want them?"

"There aren't any spare ones hanging around, are there?"

"There are not. I'm the locksmith and I'll take an oath that there's not an extra key in Lady Court," he replied with an air of authority.

"Any of the others work any of these doors?"

"No, sir. Every lock its own key is our motto around here. Why these dark suspicions, Doug? Are you hinting at foul play among the merry-makers?"

"I'm hinting at nothing." He strode to the door leading to the service quarters, gave it a vicious and ineffectual rattle, crossed to the door, still slightly ajar, that led to the chapel and stood peering into the gloom beyond it with a long scowl.

"Hand me a candle, some one. I'd like to have a look at that door to the service quarters."

"The chapel door at the back? Oh, Lindy, he doesn't believe it's locked!" Chatty's irrepressible voice soared gleefully. "He thinks Kit came through it and made you drop the mirror! You do, Doug, don't you? Oh, Doug, do find out if it's locked—hurry, hurry!"

Doug's voice, from the darkness of the chapel, answered curtly, "It's locked." He came back slowly, the pin point of flame preceding him; it was not until he had come within a pace or so of Lindy that he halted and flicked it out with a heavy finger.

Lindy, not raising her head from her struggle with a folding table that would neither fold nor stay open, lamented: "I can't make it do anything and it's pinched my fingers twice. There must be a catch somewhere——"

He asked, heavily, "What's Kit Baird to you, Lindy?"

END OF BUSINESS SLUMP DEPENDS ON RATE OF PRODUCTION

Fluctuating Prices Halt Purchases of Merchants

When Fall of Commodity Price Level Is Halted and Production Index Turns Upward Discussed by Fisher.

By IRVING FISHER.
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 3.—A business man asked me: "By what signs may I recognize that the bottom of the present business depression has been touched?"

The short answer is, when the rate of production definitely turns upward. Consult the monthly bulletin of the Federal Reserve System, for example; the index of industrial production adjusted, shows a high point of 127 for June, 1929, as compared with an average of 100 for the years 1923 to 1925. It fell off monthly thereafter to a low of 99 for December, 1929, and since then has fluctuated in hesitant fashion between 104 and 107 for the months from January to May, 1930. It has not yet shown a strong rise upward.

Similarly, in the depression of 1927-1928, the Federal Reserve Board index of industrial production, adjusted, reached a low of 95 in December, 1927; see-sawed between 106 and 115 for the ensuing seven months; maintaining a higher average for the prosperous remainder of 1928, and turned further upward beginning with January, 1929.

The 1924 Depression.

The unadjusted index of the Federal Reserve Board showed a level of production during the depression year 1924 of 95, compared with 101 and 104 for the prosperity years 1923 and 1925, respectively. During the depression year 1921 it was down to 67 from a level of 87 in 1920, and it rose to 85 in 1922.

This, roughly, answers my questioner. Because, largely, of the enlightened policy of the Federal Reserve Board in adjusting the flow of credit to the demands of business, we had between 1922 and 1929 a remarkably stabilized price level. The decline in prices since 1925 has not been especially significant as affecting the so-called "business cycle" because other than credit factors were dominant to produce the decline. Prominent among these factors was the decreasing cost of production, due to large-scale operations, rapid increase in the utilization of inventions, standardization of product and simplification of business processes.

Thus in 1926 the level of wholesale prices declined, while the rate of production increased. But during the period from 1915 to 1923, inclusive, there was a definite correspondence between the rise and fall in the level of wholesale prices and the ups and downs of industrial production. This correspondence persisted during the mild depression of 1924, 1926-27, and during the present business depression. So that reference to the level of wholesale prices, as indicated in the accompanying chart, supplies another key to searchers for a time of definite business recovery.

Must Stop Fluctuating.

But it is not at all necessary that the curve of wholesale prices should turn upward. All that is required is that it shall cease to fluctuate rapidly in either direction. When the price level rises, and especially when it rises rapidly, business automatically expands. Merchandisers are quick to increase their stocks of goods on a rising price level because they can be sold on a yet higher level of prices with augmented profit.

But price inflation is an unsafe stimulation of business. Wages do not rise with prices. Neither do the payments for long-term obligations. As a consequence consumer purchasing power is ultimately reduced, and the price inflation is followed by disastrous deflation. What is wanted is a steady level of prices, so that business men can make contracts for the future with the assurance that they are not calculating upon the present level of prices only to find, when the delivery is to be made, that the level has changed violently.

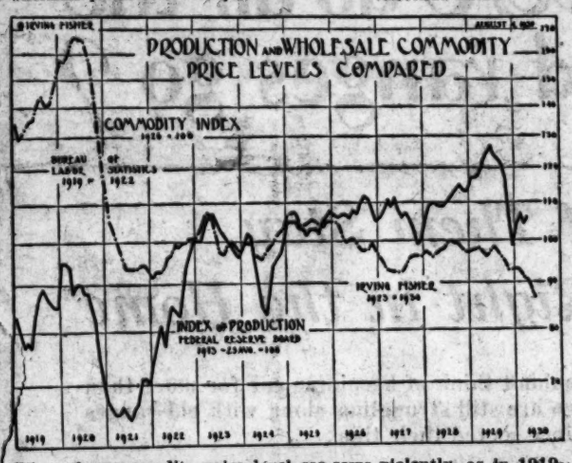
European Levels Improve.

The commodity price levels of Europe and the United States have recently shown indications of halting in their rapid rate of decline during the past year. If they halt altogether, that is, if they proceed during the coming months without violent rises or falls, business generally may draw a deep breath. Business men will begin to see the indexes of production rise; there will be a larger percentage of capacity in operation of the steel mills; the record of building contracts will begin to swell; consumption of coal, gasoline and electric power will show higher totals; carloadings will rise; the volume of check payments by the banks will increase; there will be increased receipts of raw materials for foods and clothing.

Commercial loans will rise. Foreign financing will pile up impressive totals. Brokers' loans will increase from month to month as investors and employed workers buy equities in the rising tide of business profits.

Some of these signs are already on the business horizon. If the experience of the past suffices as a guide, during the next few months we may expect to see them multiply.

(Copyright, 1930.)



When the commodity price level see-saws violently, as in 1919-1921, production rises and falls with it. When the price level is stable, as in 1925 and 1928, production tends to increase and business is good.

STOCK PRICES DROP FROM MONTH'S HIGH

Small Net Gain of Week Before Does Not Prevent Sharp Down Trend.

FOREIGN STOCKS LOWER

By E. W. DIEFENDORFER
(Irving Fisher Service).

The Index of common industrial stocks has dropped by nearly 3 per cent from the high on Monday, July 28, when the index reached 138.3. But this recession has not brought the level under the low of the preceding week, on Monday, July 21.

Prices held steady toward the week's close, and the average index for the week shows a gain of 0.4 per cent, although the movement from week's close to close was down by 1.1 per cent.

The groups of agricultural equipment, machinery and railroad equipment and chemical stocks were up by 1.4, 0.9 and 0.6 per cent, respectively, at last week's close from the preceding week's close. All other groups fell below at the close, having recorded their highs for the month early in the week.

Those groups taking the largest drops last week were radio and theaters off by 5.2 per cent, household products off by 3.4 per cent, office equipment off by 3.3 per cent; auto accessories and utilities off by 2.3 per cent each, and railroads and oils off by 2.1 per cent each.

Daily Trading Values Steady.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was dull last week, with prices slightly weaker than at the close of the preceding week, but maintaining an upward trend for the week.

Value of tradings in common industrial stocks dropped by 13 per cent to $90,000,000, with groups of machinery and railroad equipment, steels, oils, agricultural equipment, coppers, auto accessories and foods off by more than $1,000,000 each. Fourteen of the groups fell in the average daily value of tradings and six made slight gains.

The average daily value of trading in all stocks rose by 0.37 per cent to $129,200,000.

Foreign Stocks Down.

London stock prices fell last week by 4.5 per cent to 72.3, as against 100 for October 15, 1926. Berlin and Paris stocks held rather steady, with declines in each case of less than 1 per cent.

Contrasted with the index of prices on the New York Stock Exchange, which shows an upward trend since the low of the market crash last November, the European markets show downward trends from the 1929 lows. London stocks last week were off by 21 per cent from December 27, 1929; Paris stocks were off by 10 per cent from their low index of November 29, 1929, and Berlin stocks by 9 per cent from their low index of November 29.

London stocks had risen by over 100 per cent to 204.3 by October, 1928, as compared with 100 for October 15, 1926. Since then they have dropped in three major movements, namely, from 204.3 for Octboer, 1928, to 167.3 for August 30, 1929, or 18 per cent; to 91.4 for December 27, 1929, by 45 per cent, and to 72.3 to date, by 21 per cent. There has been a total percentage decrease in London from high to date of 65 per cent.

Investment stocks held as the market dropped following the high at the week's opening, with a loss over the week of 0.8 per cent; semi-investment and speculative stocks dropped by 1.2 and 3.2 per cent, respectively.

All three groups reached their high since the June low last Monday, but closed the week with declining prices. Investment and semi-investment stocks at the close were 1.2 and 0.7 per cent above their lows of the preceding week, respectively. Speculative stocks closed the week off 4.4 per cent from the index of Monday, July 28 and 1.3 per cent under the low of the preceding week.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

DOUBTLESS if Gen. Crosby is satisfied with his test of a system of motor patrols, policemen in small autos to displace foot patrolmen, he will go a step further and have these cars equipped with receiving sets to pick up wireless alarms when the proposed Washington police radio system is installed.

Thus, wherever these roving patrolmen were they could be instantly apprised of emergency calls. Any one telephoning police headquarters could be assured of getting assistance on a moment's notice.

Chief Eskimo Harry Reser last week imitated a locomotive with his banjo. This week he imitated a steamboat.

And next week a real treat is promised, at which time we are told he will imitate a couple of swinging doors.

The offering of Hindermeyer and Tuckerman seems to us poor, even for a summertime program (WRC 5:30 p. m. Tuesday).

IT is comforting to know that if our gunboat Luzon, with Rear Admiral Craven aboard, gets into a jam with the Communists on the Yangtse River in China that, though small in size, she has powerful radio equipment.

Proof of this is that the midshipmen's practice squadron en route from Germany to northern waters was in direct touch with the Luzon recently and received her short wave signals perfectly.

The strange voice announcing Amos 'n' Andy is Wallace Butterworth, taking the place of Billy Hay, now on vacation.

Though Amos 'n' Andy are in Hollywood, the announcing is still being done from Chicago.

But this is no story of a tragedy. It all happened when a baby's cry was necessary to a certain program. Mechanical "baby cries" were tried, but weren't convincing. Then Miss Jones attempted to imitate the cry of a two-week old infant. Her rendition was perfect.

Arthur L. Lippman, verse writer, a week hence will join the ranks of the so-called radio columnists.

The picturesque spectacle of the Tidworth Tatoo, a military ceremony, will be heard from England late tomorrow afternoon over WRC.

A baseball game by electric light will be on tap tonight when Baltimore meets Jersey City on the latter's illuminated field (WOR—8 p. m.).

Jane Interprets the Mode

For fall a smart ensemble, green crepe dress and a dark green woolen coat. (Courtesy of Lucile Paray, Paris.)

Paris, August 3.

HOW to be cool through August!

Do you keep your equanimity? Or do you mislay your patience and philosophy when the mercury takes a skyward leap? And is losing your powder puff the last straw? Answer: Yes.

Well, it shouldn't be—tomorrow is another day and maybe it'll rain over your printed chiffon frock, for instance. Weather is something we "have to put up with," and all the dark frowns and all the king's men couldn't induce a zephyr to lift its little finger—if there were no zephyr.

So one may just as well be cool and even-tempered, carry six or seven powder puffs and raincoat, and be greatly determined to buy one or two frocks such as I have illustrated for you today, knowing that winter always comes—

• • • •

Speaking of beaded embroidery, one reads accounts of Gabrielle d'Estray, in the year 1594, "wearing a gown so laden with pearls and sparkling gems that she outshone the light of the torches!"

• • • •

• • • •

I bet they would like to know how to make their summer dresses into fall ensembles and winter dresses! That's what we've just done with ours, being all bored with the idea of hanging them up until next summer. You can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the most useful and interesting leaflet telling you how to make your summer things over into fall ones, too; that's if you don't delay—because they might not last too long, these leaflets!

• • • •

When a dress is green crepe, and its coat is darker green wool, and its designer is Lucile Paray, then we get right busy with smiles and pen and ink, and before you exactly know it you've got the ensemble all sketched and ready to show you, deah public.

And there it is, looking right at you today, deah public. Isn't it nice?

• • • •

Also nice is the weekly Dare fashion letter which you will find in The Washington Post each Sunday.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DRAWBACKS OF PILLOWS.

MAN invented the pillow because he needed protection for his ears and the skin nerves of his head. Used properly, it is all right. But, like all good things, the pillow has some drawbacks. Babies need no pillow. They are so nearly evenly barrel shaped that they can sleep on the side without crooking the neck. They are naturally curved forward and they need to be straightened. If any pillow is used it should be very small and very soft—not much thicker than a quilt and not so firm. The warmth of the head which an adult gets from the use of a soft pillow is apt to be more unpleasant than otherwise for a baby.

An adult asks whether sleeping on a pillow makes one round-shouldered. The answer is no, since round shoulders result from poor chest development. But there are errors in posture which may result from the wrong use of this article of comfort. For instance, sleeping on a large, firm pillow tends to cause stooping and also ewe neck. The body of a newly born babe curves markedly. The senile person bends forward to about the same degree. When man is in his prime he stands straight. The use of large, firm pillows tends to develop that stoop which we recognize as indicating advancing years. Ewe neck is a forward bending of the back near where it joins the body, and a prominence of a spine of the backbone low down in the neck. The improper use of the pillow tends to promote this deformity.

In normal, light sleep a person shifts position every few minutes in order to ease the pressure on certain nerve endings. He bends his body first this way and that, if he is to be comfortable and sleep well. A large, firm pillow tends to splint him in one position. He can not easily twist himself around and find comfort.

A moderate number of people have pillow asthma. They are sensitive to feathers and when they breathe while the nose is buried in a pillow the microscopic particles drawn from the feather by the inspired air precipitate an attack. It is possible for exposure to a feather pillow to cause hives, although this is rare.

A Goofus Idyl

(Suggested by the Sights at Goofus Beach)

Radiant, handsome, big and strong,
Most as wide as she is long,
The Goofus Sea Cow must impress
All with her quaint loveliness.

Venus, Hebe, all the Graces,
Each must feel her form disgraces
As she views this dainty flower
Plucked, it seems, from Neptune's bower!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

SEEDLINGS IN AUGUST.

AUGUST is said to be the month of test of the gardener. Any one of us will garden in the springtime, for then we can not resist the call of the open, and in the fall we feel the urge to cover up and care for the plants which have served us so well. But in August our enthusiasm is usually at low ebb. We find it hard and perhaps irksome to carry on the regular routine which we joyfully started in April.

But while I must admit that pulling weeds, spraying, applying mulches and seeing that our plants do not lack water may seem laborious at this time, if we keep our minds on the glorious Scotch plaid days that are just ahead we will forget all about the torrid weather and become interested in providing a lath or cheesecloth covering for the seedlings of our perennials. The seeds of most perennial flowers are best sown in August and must be protected at this time from the intense rays of the sun. These hot days also necessitate frequent watering of the seedlings.

Among the varieties that are best started from seed at this time are forget-me-nots, English daisies, hollyhocks, Oriental poppies, sweet Williams and pansies. If we sow them earlier in the season the plants are apt to become too large for convenient handling in the spring.

The best way to raise perennials from seed is to have a cold frame. The soil in the frame must be several inches higher than the soil outside the frame, to insure perfect drainage. After sowing the seed, cover it with a light covering of soil. The depth of the covering will depend on the size of the seeds you are sowing. For small seeds a piece of burlap will provide ample covering. Larger seeds may be covered with fine soil to the depth of twice the diameter of the seed.

While the seeds are germinating they must be kept shaded. You may use a cheesecloth awning or the sash of a frame. If you use the sash be sure to whitewash the upper side of the glass. During the middle of the day the sash must be kept raised a few inches to admit air to the wee plants. Florists always keep their sash raised between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. According to the species you plant the seed will germinate in from four days to several months.

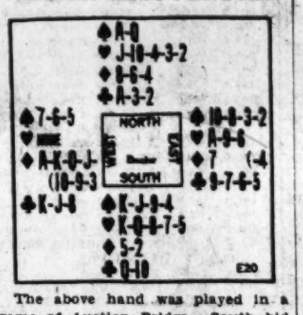
All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

WORK'S BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The above hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge. South bid one Heart; West (trying to preempt, although it is difficult to do so after an adverse bid has been made) called four Diamonds; North bid four Hearts, and that ended the auction.

Had it been played in Contract, the bidding probably would have been: South one Heart, West three Diamonds, and North three or four Hearts. If the former, South might have risked a bid of four Hearts, or he might have passed it; it would be a close choice.

While it might be said concerning South's initial bid in either game that he lacked two high-card tricks, his declaration was fully justified because in the first place his King-Queen at the head of five Hearts is a slightly stronger combination than Ace and four small Hearts, and the holding readily may be worth more than three tricks. The side King-Jack at the head of four Spades, plus the Queen-Ten of Clubs, more than made up the compensating strength which would justify a dealer in opening the auction.

When the hand was played West led Diamonds, winning first with the King and next with the Queen, but the third round was ruffed by South, who then led a trump. East won and led a Club; dummy won, exhausted the trumps, led the Ace and Queen of Spades and put closed hand in with a trump to cash his good Spades, on which dummy discarded his two losing Clubs. Consequently the Declarer made four-odd in Hearts and went game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

When playing to trick 2, East should have appreciated that it was unlikely that South had held more than two Diamonds. West's four-Diamond bid seemed to indicate a holding of at least seven. West also must have some side strength; and it must be in Clubs if it is to be helpful to East and West. It was important that this side strength be developed immediately and that the Club lead should come from East. So East should have ruffed the second Diamond and at trick 3 led a Club. It will be noted that this play would have saved game.

A Lot of Them Stay Right in the Home

PEOPLE who wouldn't think of keeping a car for more than a year or two are still struggling along with old ranges that have long since served their time.

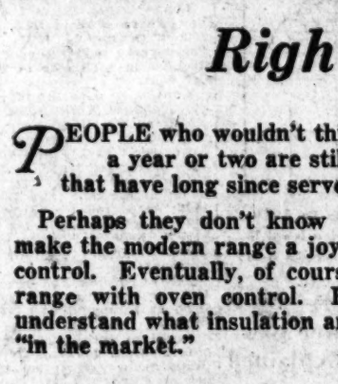
Perhaps they don't know about the new developments that make the modern range a joy to cook with—insulation and heat control. Eventually, of course, everyone will own an insulated range with oven control. Even now most people who fully understand what insulation and oven control mean are definitely "in the market."

Priced as Low as $66.40

To introduce Roper Ranges, which embody the finest design in cooking equipment, to the people of Washington—we make this special offer during the month of August.

You get a minimum of $10 off on any Roper range as an allowance for your old stove and on any new Roper priced above $100 we allow you 10% off. Ropers are priced from $77.40 up, less $10 allowance.

Terms are as low as $1 down and $3.50 a month—at any of our show rooms



Roper Offers:

1. Complete oven control
2. Even oven heat distribution
3. "Touch a button lighter"

Berg Biggest Hurdle for Chocolate

Cuban Negro to Give Away 10 Pounds in Bout Thursday.

Will Need All Skill in Battle With Dashing Britisher.

NEW YORK, Aug 3 (A.P.).—The Ebony Kid from Havana, Eligio Sardinias, otherwise known as Kid Chocolate, faces the hardest test of his career at the Polo Grounds on Thursday night when he tackles the Whitechapel whirlwind, Jack (Kid) Berg.

Unbeaten as an amateur or professional and held to a draw only by Joe Scalfaro in his first big-time bout, the 33-year-old Havana Negro will be conceding something approaching 10 pounds to one of the toughest of present-day battlers. The match was made at 133 pounds, but Berg, by the time he enters the ring, probably will scale close to 137 pounds. Chocolate is not expected to make more than 127 pounds and perhaps will scale even less.

A master boxer and a hard hitter to boot, Chocolate rates as one of the ring's outstanding attractions at this time, but he will need all his cleverness and punching power to halt berg, a Whirling Dervish on the attack. Most of the betting to date has been at 6 to 5 with Berg on the long end.

Two Ten Rounders Also On Card.

Supporting the ten-round feature bout will be two other ten-rounders, one bringing together Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles Negro welterweight, and Eddie Murdock, Tulsa, Okla., puncher, and the other pitting Eddie Mack, sensational Denver lightweight, against Sammy Dorfman, of the East Side.

The only other outstanding bout on the metropolitan district card is a ten-rounder, already twice postponed because of rain, between Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro, and Tommy Grogan, Omaha lightweight, at the Queensboro Stadium Tuesday night.

Rosenbloom Fights On Coast.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At New York, Dexter Park, Harry Ebbets, Freeport, N. C., vs. Nick Palmer, New York, middleweights, 10. At Boston, Braves Field, Dave Shade, New York, vs. Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., middleweights, 10. At Portland, Oreg., Herman Hatzlett, Minot, N. Dak., vs. Sam McVey, New York, middleweights, 10. At Louisville, Babe Ruth, Louisville, vs. Cecil Payne, Louisville, featherweights, 10. At Toledo, Louis Carpentero, Toledo, vs. Ollie Bartlett, Pontiac, bantamweights, 10. Richey Mack, California, vs. Johnny Conley, Toledo, lightweights, 8. At Dayton, Ky., Joe Lynn, Terre Haute, Ind., vs. Jimmy Neal, Cincinnati, lightweights, 10.

Tuesday—At Los Angeles, Billy Townsend, Vancouver, British Columbia, vs. Harry Brown, Philadelphia, welterweights, 10. At Spokane, Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., vs. Fred Lnehart, Spokane, lightheavyweights, 8. At Indianapolis, Henry Falegano, Des Moines, vs. Tracy Cox, Indianapolis, featherweights, 10.

Wednesday—At St. Louis, Lorenzi Angelo, California, vs. Joe Lohman, Toledo, heavyweights, 10.

Thursday—At Chicago, Stadium, Tait Littman, St. Paul, vs. Dan Gasparo, Chicago, middleweights, 8.

Friday—At San Francisco, Gorilla Jones, Akron, Ohio, Nebro, vs. Manuel Quintero, Tampa, Fla., welterweights, 10. At Hollywood, Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, vs. Canto Robleto, Pasadena, flyweights, 10.

American Rifle Team At Belgium Again

Antwerp, Belgium, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The American rifle team, which yesterday won at the standing position in the miniature rifle championships, today repeated its success in the kneeling position.

The Americans scored 1,877 points, followed by Denmark with 1,843; France, 1,824; Belgium, 1,791; Holland, 1,723, while Italy gave up .

Dr. Emmett Swanson, of Minneapolis, became world's champion in the kneeling category with a score of 382 out of a possible 400. The weapon used is a .22-caliber long "miniature rifle," at 50 meters range.

Yanks Pound Walberg for 9-3 Win

Ruth's 40th Homer, Lazzeri 2 Triples Aid in Win.

Pipgras Halts Champions as Mates Wipe Out Lead.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Giving Babe Ruth credit for a home run, No. 40 of the year, and Benny Bengough credit for smart catching and timely hitting, and making due allowance for some very fine pitching by George Pipgras, it seemed the consensus tonight that Tony Lazzeri won the honor of being the Yankee hero of today's battle with the Philadelphia Athletics at the Yankee Stadium.

Tony's bat belched a pair of very timely three-base hits. The first put his team in the lead after a stiff uphill battle against Rube Walberg, noted Mackian southpaw. That was in the seventh inning. In the eighth the second one came with the bases full and completely wrecked a game which Acting Manager Eddie Collins had prepared to take back to Philadelphia and place at the feet of Mr. Mack. The score was 9 to 3.

35,000 Crowd Gets Plenty Of Thrills.

But it wasn't as one-sided as that. Not at all. Some 35,000 fans had all sorts of shakes and quivers through seven innings of desperate fighting between Walberg and Pipgras, the A's assuming the lead and the Yankees battling hotly every step to catch up. Pipgras fairly outlasted Walberg, even though the A's made more hits, for he gave but two passes, while Walberg gave five, and four of these were cashed in for runs.

In spite of the heat, it was a smartly played game, both teams making more than the usual number of sensational plays. The Yanks were greatly helped by the presence of Bengough behind the bat. He was there because a left-hander happened to be pitching for the opposition, and he excelled even his own smart work when he was the Yanks' star backstop two years ago. If his arm holds out he'll be there more before the season is over.

NET DOUBLES CHAMPIONS BEATEN

Frances Walker and Ruth Martinez Win D. C. Women's Title.

MISS FRANCES WALKER and Mrs. Ruth Martinez yesterday afternoon won the District women's doubles tennis title by defeating the Misses Josephine Dunham and Frances Krucoff in the final round of the championship tournament played on the courts of the Columbia Country Club. Misses Dunham and Krucoff were the defending champions.

The Walker-Martinez team seemed to be much more fresh than its opponents, following the morning semifinals, which consumed more than two hours of play, and downed the Dunham-Krucoff combination in straight sets, 6—3 and 6—2.

Winners Start Match At Fast Clip.

Miss Walker and Mrs. Martinez started with a rush and shortly after the match got under way it could be seen that this team would win handily, for its opponents seemed to have lost much of their pep and the dash, especially that which usually marks Miss Krucoff's game, was conspicuous by its absence.

Three sets were needed in each of the morning semifinal matches and both were long drawn-out affairs with rather sloppy tennis played at times. In advancing to the ultimate round, Misses Dunham and Krucoff defeated the Wakeford-Graham duo, 3—6, 6—3, 9—7. As is indicated by the score, the third and deciding set was a thriller, with each team within set-point on several occasions.

Miss Walker and Mrs. Martinez advanced to the title round by eliminating Misses Kingsbury and Raver, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4. While these sets were close, the winners had quite an edge in the final one.

W. T. Henderson Wins Beaver Dam Tourney

In the tournament at the Beaver Dam Club yesterday for the Cheverley Cup, eighteen holes, medal play, handicap allowed, W. T. Henderson was the winner with a card of 82—13—69. George House was second, with 94—23—71, tying with A. B. Robertson, whose figures were 92—21—71.

Manor Club Golf Event Landed by Stoddard

In a match play against par at the Manor Club yesterday, C. W. Stoddard led the field. With a handicap of nine strokes, he finished two up on par. W. W. Dean, whose allowance of fifteen strokes enabled him to finish one down to par, was second.

Browns Rout Tribe; Stewart Wins No. 13

St. Louis, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Southpaw Walter Stewart chalked up his thirteenth victory of the season today as the St. Louis Browns defeated the Cleveland Indians, 14 to 6.

Mel Harder, who started for the Indians, was driven from the mound in the first inning and the Browns continued their hitting against his three successors, Jablonowski, Bean and Lawson.

L. Sewell, Hodapp and Morgan hit home runs for the visitors.

ROBINS BEAT GIANTS, 1-0, ON WALK

Hubbell Forces Only Run Over in 9th in Duel With Vance.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The Robins won a pitchers' duel here today when Carl Hubbell walked Flowers with the bases filled in the ninth to give the league leaders a 1-to-0 decision over the Giants.

Previous to that, Hubbell had outpitched Dazzy Vance, who was in frequent trouble. Vance allowed eight hits.

The Giant left-hander allowed only three hits until the ninth, when Herman led off with a handle hit to left for two bases. Moore batted for Bissonette and sacrificed successfully. After Wright and Bressler were purposely passed, Hubbell got only one pitch in five over the plate to Flowers and Herman walked over with the winning run.

Tigers Win 3d in Row; Hoyt Checks Chisox

Detroit, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The Tigers made it three in a row over the Chicago White Sox by taking a 4-to-3 decision today.

Waite Hoyt went the route for Detroit. All of Chicago's runs were scored on homers by Reynolds. His first came with none on base in the sixth, and his second after Watwood doubled in the eighth.

Dale Alexander was the heavy hitter for Detroit. He tripled with two on base in the first inning and scored on Stone's sacrifice fly. In the sixth he doubled, went to third on another sacrifice by Stone, and scored the winning run on Funk's single. Cecil Caraway started for Chicago and was relieved by Young Ed Walsh after six innings.

Marberry Out With Injury For Week

Hurler Hurt Wrist, Forearm in Slide at New York.

Nats Meet Yanks in 2 Games Tomorrow; Kuhel Impressive.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

PITCHER FRED MARBERRY will be lost to the Nationals for at least a week, and probably longer, it was learned yesterday when Trainer Mike Martin made a careful examination of his right wrist, which he strained in the second game of Saturday's double-header in New York. While sliding into third base in the fifth inning, Marberry's wrist and forearm were slightly wrenched Little was thought of it at the time and he continued pitching.

As the Nats' sixth ended, he called for help and Irving Hadley was rushed to the bull pen and warmed up while Marberry went through that round, the relief man starting work in the seventh. Marberry's injury was thought to be nothing serious at the time and it seemed to be responding to Trainer Martin's ice-pack treatments on the train on the way home.

The wrist stiffened Saturday night, however, and the arm was badly swollen when the big pitcher showed up at the ball park yesterday. Marberry spent nearly an hour yesterday having his arm baked, but indications are that he will not be available for duty for possibly ten days.

While the Nationals have not given up their pennant hopes, at the moment they are having a fight on their hands holding second place, and it is not necessary to state that the big Texan will be sorely missed at this time.

Team to Attend Rites For Mrs. Johnson.

No baseball is on the program for the Nationals today, as the scheduled game in New York with the Yankees has been postponed and listed as part of a double-header in the Big Town tomorrow, in order that the players may attend the funeral of Mrs. Walter Johnson at 11 o'clock this morning.

Among the Washington players Mrs. Johnson's loss is regarded as a personal one, to say nothing of the sympathy they hold for their bereaved boss, who is regarded more as a big brother by veterans and rookies alike.

The Nationals are scheduled to leave for New York at 4 o'clock this afternoon in order to obtain a good night's sleep before tackling the Yankees twice tomorrow. Acting Manager Joe Judge is figuring on using Lefty Lloyd Brown and Irving Hadley as his pitchers. If these two are at their best, the Nats are hopeful of repeating the dose they administered to Ruth & Co. Saturday, when they captured both ends of a bargain day bill.

Phelps Not Impressive As Outfielder.

Gordon Phelps, catcher and converted to outfielder by the Hagerstown manager since he was optioned to the Maryland team by the Nationals, had a day off yesterday, and so came here to work out with the Johnsons. Both President Clark Griffith and Acting Manager Judge took a look at him while Coach Patsy Gharrity chased him all over the wide open spaces for fungoes, but they were not greatly impressed and believe that the chubby lad's baseball future lies behind the bat.

The Red Sox showed home fans a new shortfielder yesterday in the person of Harold (Rabbit) Warstler, recently purchased from the Indianapolis club of the American Association. This youngster, who cost the Beaneaters several players and a wad of cash, was scouted and bought by President Bob Quinn "in person." He is little, but fast, and is reputed to be a good hitter. He didn't look impressive at bat yesterday, though.

Kuhel Impressive in Big League Debut.

First Baseman Joe Kuhel, high-priced rookie from the Kansas City American Association Team, made his debut as a big league starter yesterday and created quite a favorable impression. He was scheduled to play in only one of the two games against the Red Sox, but did so well in the first fracas that Acting Manager Joe Judge decided to let him continue through the second, too.

Kuhel, who pronouunces his name with the "h" silent, came to bat in three tough spots for a rookie in the first game and twice delivered with hits. All told, he was responsible for driving home three runs in this fracas, while it was his clean single which propelled Joe Cronin home with the only Washington run in the closing number.

Kuhel also looks to be quite a fielder. He accepted 23 chances yesterday without the semblance of a slip-up, can shift his feet on the sack like a veteran, and delighted the large crowd in the fourth frame of the first game by cleverly negotiating the double play for which Judge is famous, that of starting and finishing it, first to short to first.

All in all, the rookie's debut may be termed a "howling" success.

SARATOGA OFFERS STAKE DAILY FOR CURRENT WEEK

3-Year-Olds Face Sprint Today

Racing Reaches Peak Saturday With 3 Stakes Listed.

Gallant Knight to Get Rest; Races Again in September.

By GEORGE DALEY.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Much is in store in a racing way for the first full week of the vacation meeting at this sporting center. At least one stake a day with three on Saturday will attract the best of the many horses stabled here. Of course, the big attractions come toward the end with the Alabama Stakes for 3-year-old fillies on Friday and the North American Steeplechase, Saratoga Special and Whitney Memorial on Saturday. It will be a racing feast.

The Alabama Stakes at one mile and a quarter will be worth $18,000 and if Walter J. Salmon's Snowflake, winner of the Coaching Club, American Oaks and other stakes, goes to the post against the Wheatley Stable's Erin, H. P. Whitney's Murky Cloud and Dustemall, H. C. Phipp's Nicotine and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Goose Egg, the question as to the best of the 3-year-old fillies will be definitely established. Alcibiades, the leader of the Middle West, is not eligible, but Snowflake appears to have her measure except on a muddy track.

Saratoga Special Is High Spot.

The sporting Saratoga Special will be the high spot of the week. The Whitney, named in memory of the late Payne Whitney, also promises well with another chance for Curate and Petee Wrack to repay their followers. The full list of stakes for the week follow.

Monday—The Seneca, for 3-year-olds; $5,000; six furlongs. Won 1929 by Kopeck.

Tuesday — The Saratoga Sales Stakes, for 2-year-olds; $6,000; 5½ furlongs. Won 1929 by The Beasel.

Wednesday—The Saranac Handicap, for 3-year-olds; $8,000; 1 mile. Won 1929 by Hard Tack.

Thursday—The Albany Handicap, for 2-year-olds; $6,000; 6 furlongs. Won 1929 by Peto.

Friday—Alabama Stakes for 3-year-old fillies; $18,000; 1¼ miles. Won 1929 by Aquastella.

Saturday—North American Steeplechase for jumpers; $4,000; 2 miles. Won 1929 by Coronation. Saratoga Special for 2-year-olds; $16,000; 6 furlongs. Won 1929 by Whichone. Whitney Memorial for 3-year-olds and over; $10,000; 1¼ miles. Won 1929 by Bateau.

Gallant Knight to Rest Until September.

Gallant Knight, twice second to Gallant Fox this year and winner of the Fairmount and Latonia Derbies, is getting a short rest. According to Kay Spence his next engagement will be in the Realization at Belmont Park in September when he will have another shot at the Fox of Belair.

James Butler's Questionnaire, definitely set himself up as the fourth best 3-year-old in the country when he so easily disposed of Gone Away and Spinach in the Empire City Derby. He previously had beaten Flying Heels twice. The good son of Sting has no engagements at the Saratoga meeting.

E. R. Bradley heads the list of winning owners for the Arlington Park meeting which wound up on Saturday after a most brilliant session. Thanks to Blue Larkspur, he is at the top with $87,450. William Woodward is a close second with $66,950, a place made possible by Gallant Fox and his victory in the classic. Pigeon Hole put Hal Price Headley in third place with $56,400 through winning the Arlington Handicap, while Mrs. John D. Hertz is fairly well up with $20,000.

Questionnaire was the horse which carried James Butler to the head of the list of winning owners for the Empire City meeting which came to an end last Tuesday. The good 3-year-old won three stakes, including the Empire City Derby. Altogether, Mr. Butler's colors finished in front eight times, or really nine, for he lost one by disqualification. The total amounted to $23,220.

—Saratoga Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 3.—The Seneca claiming stakes features the Monday program at the Saratoga course. It is the twenty-eighth running of the fixture for 3-year-olds, with a claiming price of $8,500, this insuring a good deal of class in the entries. Fourteen have been listed for this race, 6 furlongs, and third on the program. The first four days of the meeting reflected credit on the racing at this point, and was rich in the class of 2-year-olds uncovered.

Saratoga racing is seldom dull, and always there is in store contests among the great, and this season the Spa has its Gallant Fox and Jamestown, as other seasons had its Man o' War, Exterminator, Roamer, Reigh Count, Zev and Sarazen.

Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's IMPERIAL AIR is selected to win the Seneca. He takes off weight, he has worked well, has had a conditioning race here, and is ready to repeat his two victories at Jamaica. Harry Payne Whitney has an entry rated as the contender, PROMETHEUS being the better of his representatives. In his last start, this gelding was beaten three-fourths of a length by Lost Agnes. His running mate is ANGRY, which has been racing well in Canada. YANKEE DOODLE is rated third. He should improve over his race of Friday when beaten by Paradise Lost. HAND TO HAND has a chance in this race.

FIRST RACE—Is claiming for maiden 2-year-olds. MUFF, a fast filly by Dark Jest, which ran with juveniles like The Break in her last, and finished fourth, is picked on class, works and condition. HARLEM will be favorite and is dangerous, was third to Rockbelle in her first start opening day here and should be the contender. BRANDON DARE, which has run more races than any 2-year-old, beginning in January, is still a maiden, but has shown several creditable races. Third will do him.

SECOND RACE — The Pathfinder Steeple Chase should go to FLOWER ROCK. He has been in the money his last two starts and is reasonably sure on his feet. This race is for maiden jumpers, and ability to stand up going over the obstacles is more important than speed. NIGHT RETREAT is regarded the contender, and HORICON, making his third start through the field, has the promise of improving.

FOURTH RACE — The Hamburg Handicap has the prospect of the keenest kind of contest, FINITE and STARPATIC meeting at almost even weights, in a mile, and it may be that the others in this field will be little more than lookers on. Each has started and won a race here at this meeting. FINITE beat Peto seven furlongs last Friday in 1:24 3-5; STARPATIC beat Lahor a mile in 1:37 3-5, and both horses were going strongest at the end. BUD BROOM is coupled with STARPATIC, and he may not be out of it. He is one of the horses believed to have been sponged in his last race. YANKEE DOODLE also is better than his last race shows and has a good chance to be in the money.

FIFTH RACE has much speed in it. The Coe filly, SWEEP OUT, should take the purse, seven furlongs. She has been slightly off, and then she has been running with better horses. She will smother the field today with speed. TUSKEGEE is the contender. He carries the colors of Rudolph Spreckles, has turned off six furlongs in 1:11 2-5. He should place. ARMAGEDDON, son of Man o' War, may run back to his Maryland form. He should not be worse than third, but is a bad post horse.

SIXTH RACE is for 2-year-olds. BUCKUP should win right back. This J. E. Widener filly beat a large field first out, TENEZ being second, five furlongs in 1:00 3-5. That race repeated will win this one. ZAIDEE, which just missed in the last race Saturday, is the dangerous one. ALLEZ VITE looks best of the others. HARUM SCARUM has an outside chance.

NATS DIVIDE BILL WITH RED SOX

Beaten, 7 to 1, After Taking Opener by 11-2 Margin.

Todt was credited with the first hit of the game, singling past Bluege, who ed in the fourth were Myer's opening one-baser, Rice's suicide, Manush's double and another single by Kuhel. Bushey relieved Gaston after this frame and had no troubles until the sixth, when the Nats staged their final rally of the game.

Myer opened this with a single and Rice beat out his intended sacrifice. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch and a walk to Manush packed the aisles. Cronin doubled two home, another counted on Kuhel's useful out, while the fourth registered on West's sacrifice fly.

Liska Encounters Poor Start.

Liska started off badly in the second game and got no better fast, the result being that the Nats were trailing from the start. Bases on balls starting both the first and second innings figured in the making of runs when followed by some timely hits and when the submarine ball flinger started the fourth by passing two. Burke was rushed to his relief.

Todt's scratchy double and an honest-to-goodness one by Connolly followed before the relieving southpaw could get properly warmed up and the visitors were leading, 6 to 0, when the frame ended. Thereafter, Burke granted but two hits, but one was Russel's homer in Round 7, while Harry Child pitched hitless ball during the ninth.

The Johnsons only had one man as far as first in the first six frames and then delayed the game long enough to score a useless marker in the seventh. This came from Cronin's opening triple and Kuhel's single to center. After West had hit into a force-play, Bluege singled and Acting Manager Judge thought that this would be a good spot for Shires. He batted for Ruel, but hit into a double-play and not a Nat saw base-life thereafter.

Pirates Defeat Cubs, 12-8; Wilson Hits 35th

Chicago, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh took another reef in the Cubs' hopes of overhauling the Brooklyn Robins, slugging out a 12-to-8 victory in the final game of the series today

The Cubs got away to a big start and led by 7 to 4 when the Pirates went to bat in the eighth Charlie Root blew up in that session and his successors, Fred Blake and Bud Teachout, were unable to halt the rally until eight runs had been scored. Erv Brame was hit hard by the Cubs but stuck it out.

Al Bool, Pirate catcher, kept up his home-run streak, getting one, to make it four in the three-game series. Hack Wilson also got his thirty-fifth circuit drive of the season.

CHEVY CHASE UPSETS TIGERS IN MONTGOMERY RACE

Takoma Nine Beaten by 12 to 6

Knight Holds Foes Safe After Gaining the Lead.

Rockville Moves Up Notch by Beating Bethesda Nine.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Takoma	11	2	.846	Bethesda	6	6	.500
Ch. Chase	10	3	.769	Kensington	1	10	.091
Rockville	8	5	.615	Colonials	1	11	.082

CHEVY CHASE proved a stumbling block to the hopes of the Takoma Tigers to clinch the pennant in the Montgomery County section of the Capital City League yesterday. Instead of taking the beating that many fans thought was coming to them, the Chevy Chase boys played some inspired baseball and the last round found the Tigers beaten by a 12-to-6 margin.

The Tigers went down fighting, however. They threatened in both the eighth and ninth, but on each occasion the Chevy Chase gang came through with double plays that shattered their hopes.

Knight Mound Hero Of Game.

Ray Knight was the pitching hero of the game This young man, who yesterday won his ninth straight league game of the season, might have been in better form. He did not begin to hit his true stride until Chevy Chase took a one-run lead in the fifth. From that point on he blanked the Tiger sluggers.

Both Skinner and Duffey, who divided the hurling for Takoma, had their troubles with the Chevy Chase line-up. Kirchmyer was one of the chief offenders, with four hits in six trips to the plate. Young came through with three bingles, including a homer and a triple, while Medler also hit for the circuit.

Ferrari's fielding was one of the high spots of the game. He handled nine chances at short, several of the difficult variety.

James, Henley Lead Tigers With Flails.

James and Henley were the consistent hitters for the Tigers. Both had a record of three hits in five times up for the day. The victory gives Chevy Chase ten victories in thirteen starts. The Tigers have eleven victories in thirteen games.

Rockville moved into third place in the race by defeating the Betesda Nine, 5 to 3, in another Montgomery County game which turned out to be a battle between Coleman and Broadhurst. The former earned the decision. He allowed only four hits and fanned nine batters. Dorch, J. Hutchinson and L. Oldfield were the leading batters. Scores in the seventh and eighth won the game for Rockville.

Columbia Heights, St. Joe Win District League Games

Leaders Nose Out Foxall, 9-8, as Goodman Stars; Burroughs Routed by 24-5 Margin; Aztecs Forfeit to Eagles.

THE Columbia Heights and St. Joseph teams kept pace yesterday in the race for the Capital City League District pennant, both winning in two contrasting games. The Heights team, in taking its tenth victory of the campaign, had its hands full in nosing out Foxall, 9-8, while St. Joseph was again employing steamroller tactics in swamping another opponent by a 24-5 count. Burroughs was the victim this time.

Keefer scored the winning run for Columbia Heights in the ninth inning. The catcher dropped a third strike and Keefer scored from third while the catcher threw out the batter.

Goodman Stars in Box For Heights.

Ellis Goodman, veteran right-hander, was the Columbia Heights hero. He entered the game in the fifth inning and held Foxall to one run for the remainder of the distance. In the ninth, Goodman fanned the side.

Keefer, Lewis and Ruppert led the Heights attack. Gold and Dobbs hit homers. The fielding of Whiltshire was one of the bright spots of the game.

St. Joseph turned in another of those rough and ready victories over on the Plaza. The Saints scored in every inning except the seventh and pounded over seven runs in the sixth frame. Cinotti and Haas contributed homers. Haas' record for the day was four out of four. Farrington got three out of three. Much three out of six and Shapiro 4 like number of bingles.

Casper Shows Way to St. Joe Hitters.

Casper did the bulk of the Buroughs hitting with four safeties in five chances. Schneider and Farrington divided the St. Joseph pitching.

The Aztecs forfeited to the Anacostia Eagles.

CELTICS WIN OVER TYPO NINE, 18-3

Dreifus Scatters 9 Hits, Pounds Out Homer to Star.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 3.—The St. Mary's Celtics put their old rivals—the Union Printers—to rout yesterday by a score of 18-3. Doc Dreifus was on the mound for the Celtics and scattered nine hits. He fanned nine batters and further established himself in the favor of the local fans by poling out a home run.

Mickey Kelliher, the Celtic manager, and Hamilton came through with four hits in five times at bat while Ludlow's contribution to the eighteen hit attack was three singles. The Celtics clinched the game in the second inning when they chased eight runs across the plate.

Homan led the attack for the Printers with three singles in five trips to the plate.

THE Dixie Pigs held their own in the Prince Georges County League race yesterday by scoring a well-earned victory over the Brentwood Hawks. The final score was 18-4. The only other game scheduled in the circuit failed to materialize. Mount Rainier was awarded a forfeit when the Bowie Motor Co. Nine failed to put in an appearance.

Blackie Adair was assigned the pitching task yesterday and turned in another good performance for the Dixie Pigs. He held his opponents scoreless until the ninth. The Pigs clinched the game in the first inning when they chased five runs across the plate.

Fee Colliere was the hero of the hard-hitting attack. Colliere drove out four hits, including a man's-size homer. Wolfe and Shaw got three hits each for their respective teams.

AUGUST 4, 1905.

The missing mayor of Paterson, N. J. is still being sought. His list of alleged swindlings mounts each day.

The yellow fever epidemic at New Orleans is rapidly spreading. A summarized report says: Total deaths this week 84, new cases this week 432, deaths today 5, new cases today 54.

This was the line-up of the Metropolitan Police Baseball Team, which defeated Capitol Traction 16 to 7: Wilson 1b, McNish 3b, Branzel c, Ault cf, T. Brown rf, A. Brown 2b, Kliend'st ss, Creal lf, Burch p.

The Russian and Japanese Peace Envoys are on their way to Oyster Bay, N. Y., where they will be introduced by President Roosevelt while on the Presidential yacht, the Mayflower.

Five cases of heat prostration were reported today.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

IS YOUR CHILD READY FOR SCHOOL?

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

The child who is to enter school for the first time in the fall should have a thorough examination by a physician and by a dentist in the early spring or early summer. This will allow the summer time for the correction of defects and for vaccination; also for immunization if necessary. (School brings added danger of getting communicable diseases). If the child has not been having half yearly examinations up to this time a thorough examination is especially needed.

A physical defect puts a child at a disadvantage with his schoolmates. Poor sight or poor hearing may make him seem dull in school and cause him to become discouraged and uninterested. Do not let your child reach the school age with a handicap that can be removed. Ask yourself these questions:

Does my child see and hear well?

Are his teeth well kept and sound?

Are his nose and throat in healthy condition?

Does the doctor consider his weight correct for his height and age?

Are his eyes bright, his cheeks rosy, his muscles firm and his posture erect?

Has he been vaccinated against smallpox and immunized against diphtheria? (also against typhoid fever if this is necessary).

Has he good habits of sleeping, eating, bathing, self-control and obedience?

"Alley Motoring" Gains.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Crowded thoroughfares have popularized "alley travel," until, under a ruling by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, Ohio municipalities may use their part of State gasoline and motor vehicle taxes for repaving public alleys.

MODEL PLANE TEST REGULATIONS MADE

Tournament Will Be Held During Four Days at End of Month.

QUALIFICATIONS ARE SET

Interest among young model plane makers of the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia in the approaching 1930 model aircraft tournament here on August 25, 26, 27 and 29 is mounting to fever heat. Only two more preliminary meets are scheduled before the tournament—August 2, at Bolling Field, for outdoor contests and qualification tests, and August 16, at Macfarland Community Center for indoor contests and qualification tests.

The tournament itself is scheduled to take place at Macfarland Community Center on August 25 and 29, for indoor events and at Bolling Field on August 26 and 27 for outdoor events. The tournament is open to every flier who registers and qualifies on or before August 16.

The committee on rules for the 1930 D. C. tournament, of which Paul Edward Garber is chairman, has just announced the complete set-up of regulations by which the local tournament will be governed, as follows:

All events are for duration of flight.

Indoor events, except gliders, are for rubber-powered airplanes, motive power carried in plane itself, tractor or pusher. The distance from the inner face of the propeller to the opposite hook connection is to be 15 to 20 inches, except Baby ROG, which shall be less than 15 inches. The greatest overall dimension of all indoor types is to be no greater than 30 inches.

Outdoor Event Rules.

Outdoor events, except in case of dynamic and gliders, are for rubber-powered airplanes, motive power carried in plane itself, tractor or pusher. The distance from the inner face of the propeller to opposite hook connection is to be not under 20 inches, not over 36 inches. The greatest overall dimension is to be no greater than 48 inches.

Each contestant will be allowed three official flights in each event. A flight of less than five seconds will be a "delayed flight" and will not be scored. If the contestant desires, a flight accidentally interfered with by officials or others, or checked by being caught in the ceiling lights at Macfarland, will be considered a "delayed flight." Three delayed flights will count as an official flight. The same or different planes may be used. The best flight, only, scores for points, except in case of a tie, when second flight will determine the winner.

All planes must be made and operated by the contestant. If, in the opinion of the judges, special contions warrant, a substitute may be allowed to operate a plane. In addition to raw materials, contestants are allowed to purchase in finished form, only bearings, propeller shaft, small metal fittings, and wheels.

Other Power than Rubber.

For planes with power other than rubber (dynamic) contestants are allowed to purchase spring motors, compressed air motors, tank outfits, and other motor devices. All floats and propellers must be made by the contestant.

Dynamic models must be equipped with one or more propellers, wings, and fuselage. This requirement is intended to eliminate entries that are obviously not aircraft. Rockets are especially barred.

Fuselage models must have the rubber within the fuselage. The fuselage covering must extend at least four fifths of the length of the rubber motor, measured from the inner face of the propeller to the opposite hook connection. Paper tubes will not be considered to be fuselage. Double-surfaced or hollow wings are required. They must have landing chassis, with two or more wheels in front, with either a wheel or tail skid at the rear, and must be able to rest stationary on landing gear, and to taxi under own power a distance of three feet.

In every class, each contestant will score points in each event in which he competes, as follows: First place, 5 points; second place, 5 points; third place, 3 points; fourth place, 2 points; fifth place, 1 point.

More Than 20,000 View Model Home of Post

More than 20,000 persons have been delighted by a visit to the fifth Washington Post model home of the year during the four weeks it has been open for public inspection. In spite of the heat yesterday, hundreds were conducted through the dwelling at 6609 Sixteenth street northwest.

The home, furnished and decorated by W. B. Moses & Sons and offered for sale by McKeever & Goss, Inc., will be open weekdays from 2 p. m. to 9 p. m., and on Sundays from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. It may be seen by appointment at other hours by communicating with McKeever & Goss, Inc., at National 4750.

Bananas Send Vender To Ill Wife in Greece

Gus George Constantinos Paputsis, who sold enough bananas to revisit his home in Greece, where he left a paralyzed wife 24 years ago, with the promise to return.

Gus' Life Savings Spent, but He Is Back Here, Happy at Pushcart.

Gus George Constantinos Paputsis knows his bananas. Since 1907 he has given them loving and assiduous care, and in return they made possible the dream of his declining years—a trip back to his old home at Samos, Greece, and his paralyzed wife, Xenia.

Gus George is just a little banana man who made good in a big way. He operates no fleets of ships and refrigerator cars, but he owns a push cart and despite his 65 years, he can push with the best of them.

For years George's banana cart has awaited the exodus of workers in the Justice Department building at Vermont avenue and K streets. Rain or shine, hot or cold, his bananas were always on tap. He became a fixture in the neighborhood, his customers included the high and the low and the betwixt and between. Nickels came in slowly but steadily.

Then one day last April George disappeared. For months his cart was nowhere to be seen. Some confirmed banana eaters of the neighborhood made inquiries at George's room on Third street, but to no avail. Sadly they went elsewhere for their bananas.

Recently Gus George returned, as silently as he had departed. Where had he been? To Greece, of course. Hadn't he promised his poor Xenia that he would return, when the nickels piled up? Xenia looked just like she did when he left her 24 years ago. He had wanted to bring her back with him, but she had preferred to die among her own people. His daughter wanted to come with him, too, but she had twelve children. "Too big family," Gus explained.

He exhibited his bank book with mingled pride and sorrow. Hundreds and hundreds of small deposits had grown to nearly $5,000 on April 1 last. But on August 1 he had only $6.20 to his credit. "All gone," he said, with a shrug. "One time rich, broke now."

The bank clerk expressed sorrow over the condition of George's account, but George told him "you no scrry like I do." He isn't discouraged, however. He's got a new stock of bananas, and people will always buy bananas. And he has some choice olive oil that he brought back from Greece with him.

The only thing that worries him is that he doesn't expect to see Xenia again. It will take some time to get enough nickels to go back to Greece.

BETTER GRADE RAIL, UTILITY BONDS RISE

Gain in Two Groups in Face of New Financing for Week Surprises.

SALES VOLUME IS SMALL

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Steady improvement in the price of utility obligations in the face of a large volume of new financing was an outstanding feature of the bond market last week.

The advance made by the highest grade utility issues on the New York Stock Exchange during the week was surpassed only by railroad obligations which have provided the leadership in the rise in bond values. Bond houses believe this a good sign, as there has been strong competition from new issues which in a fortnight surpassed $2,000,000,000. Most of the utility flotations have been of the short term variety for which there has been an insatiable demand.

Bond men say that the reluctance of institutions to bid briskly for seasoned issues, which quickly respond to nominal inquiry, and the amount of new utility financing probably account for the thin market in bonds of this description. The new financing so far has not been a handicap to progress.

Eighty-two per cent of the offerings last week, which totaled $118,968,000, was for utility companies. Three issues accounted for all but $4,000,000 of the $97,974,500 worth of utility offerings, these being the $50,000,000 General Gas & Electric short term issue, $25,000,000 Pacific Gas & Electric Co. offering and $18,834,500 Ohio Edison Co. loan.

Offerings for July contributed $734,752,777 to the large volume of bond issues which have appeared this year. Of that amount $228,925,000 came from public utilities.

The averages show that the level of bond prices remained close to the year's peak throughout the week. Foreign buying of standard foreign dollar bonds, particularly French 7s and 7½s, enabled them to make marked progress, and several reached new 1930 highs. Another feature was the drop in the new Austrian 7 per cent loan, following withdrawal of support by the offering syndicate. The price fell nearly 3 points below the figure at which the bond was offered, then gained about 1 point.

The volume of trading has been small, which is normal for this time of year, when activity in the bond market is slight. Considerable irregularity characterized the movement of secondary, speculative and stock privilege issues. Nevertheless, bond men say that demand for fixed income securities gradually is extending to issues which rank below the gilt-edged class.

Time and call money rates during July rested on the lowest levels since September, 1924. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York points out in its monthly review that the end of July usually marks the beginning of a seasonal increased demand for Federal reserve credit, which, it predicts, will amount to about $500,000,000 before the close of the year. Bond buying by banks is strongly influenced by credit conditions.

CURB UTILITY ISSUES FEATURE IN MARKET

LACKS DEFINITE COURSE

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The curb market faces the new week with price trends lacking. Speculative sentiment was so inert in recent sessions, especially at the week-end, that fluctuations were virtually meaningless and gave no indication of the market's intentions.

There was further revival of activity in the utilities last week. The group was irregular, with some wide fluctuations in issues which have a thin market. A notable performer was American Gas & Electric, whose 20-point advance in a little more than a week attracted only moderate profit-taking. The move in this stock, following publication of the earnings statement, was attributed to urgent covering. The available supply of the issue is not large and shorts had to bid briskly when the upturn started.

Electric Bond & Share was generally steady, and a few other active utilities displayed a similar tendency. Prices rallied moderately early in the week, but sagged in the later sessions. United Light & Power A, which is said to be earning at the rate of about $2.50, was supported around the high for the recovery, although it slipped back a few points from the top. Niagara Hudson and American Superpower eased in the dull markets of the week-end.

There was little activity in the oils, Cosden was a pool feature, but offerings outweighed buying orders in most of the other favorites.

Industrials and specialties thinned out noticeably as the week progressed and price changes reflected the slacker trading by showing some wide variations in the less active shares. Lerner Stores was heavy, breaking several points to a new low. Deere was also in supply during most of the week.

Short selling was tried with fair success in the investment company group. Goldman-Sachs Trading report for the first six months, showing less than 50 cents a share, was apparently disappointing, despite the stated asset value of $30, as of June 30, and the stock met liquidation that sent it to a new low. United Founders was quiet and firm. National Investors was heavy.

Two Seriously Injured In Collision of Autos

Two persons were seriously injured when their car was in a collision with another at Eighteenth and Monroe street northeast yesterday. The injured persons are Reinholt Bodener, 43 years old, of 1801 Otis street northeast, and his wife, Eva, 37 years old, who was driving the car. They were removed to Emergency Hospital where it was said that they had sustained strained backs, body bruises, and possible internal injuries.

The other car which figured in the crash was driven by Lewis Fiora, 36 years old, of 937 Quincy street northwest, according to the police report. Fiora was unhurt. Both cars were wrecked.

FOUR INDOOR PLAYS PLANNED BY LEAGUE

Community Drama Association Announces Program on Reorganization.

DR. CROISSANT PRESIDENT

The Community Drama Guild of Washington reorganized last week in accordance with the recently adopted by-laws of the guild, is already deep in the development of interesting plans for the coming season, which will see the public presentation of not less than four indoor plays of wide popular appeal, and the annual al fresco production next June at the Sylvan Theater.

The first meeting of the newly elected board of governors of the guild for 1930-31, was taken up with the election of officers of the organization and the appointment of the executive committee, in whose hands will lie much of the active work of the guild.

Dr. De Witt C. Croissant was elected president, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, vice president, and William S Corby, treasurer, for the coming year. Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest was appointed by the Community Center Department to be executive secretary of the Drama Guild. The membership of the board of governors comprises, also, Judge Mary O'Toole, Cuno H. Randolph, Clifford K. Berryman, William E. Bryant, Mrs. Alice Sigworth Morse, Brad Holmes, Miss Sybl Baker, who represents the Community Center Department, and Capt. Ray C. Montgomery, who represents the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks. Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, who has been the press representative of the Drama Guild ever since its organization in 1928, will continue to serve in that capacity for the ensuing year.

The executive committee of the Guild includes the president, Dr. Croissant; the vice president, Mrs. Lewis; the executive secretary, Mrs. Forrest; the treasurer, Mr. Corby, and the chairman of the advisory council, Mr. Bryant. It also includes the chairmen of the four standing committees as follows: Membership, production, business and publicity. For the year 1930-31 these chairmen will be Mrs. John Otto Johnson, membership; Denis E. Connell, production; Elwood Street, publicity, and Claude Owen, business.

The committee on play reading and selection, which is an adjunct of the production committee, has already met and outlined a course of play reading in the present month for its members in order that by September 1 announcement of the plays chosen for 1930-31 may be made to the public and active preparations made for the entire season.

Two Men Arrested On Prohibition Charge

The delay of two men in starting an automobile parked at Twelfth street and New York avenue northwest yesterday afternoon led First Precinct Policeman A. B. Clark to stroll by the car. Beneath a coat he saw a bottle containing what he said was liquor.

He took both men to the station. George Henry Gosha, 48 years old, of Thirteenth street near K street northwest, was charged with possession and transportation of two pints of liquor, no permit, and no registration card. Joseph H. Mesley, 60 years old, of the Ambassador Hotel, was charged with possession of two pints of liquor.

Man Escapes Arrest At Carnival in McLean

Justice of the Peace, Carlin Cockerille, of Colvin Run, Va., arrested a man for driving while drunk Saturday night at the McLean carnival. When the justice sat down to write out the warrant for the man's arrest the prisoner made his escape from custody. A number of persons gave chase, but the man eluded them.

Yesterday morning County Policeman Carl R. McIntosh arrested A. M. Redmond, of Centerville, on the justice's warrant. He is being held in the Fairfax County Jail awaiting a hearing.

Community Sing Tonight.

A motion picture entertainment will be the feature of the community sing to be held at 8 o'clock tonight in Rock Creek Parkway at Twenty-seventh, O and M streets northwest, under the direction of the Associated Charities of Georgetown. On August 26, the last night of the community sings there this summer, a band concert and dance will be held.

RANDOLPH FORREST DIES IN ALEXANDRIA

Member of Distinguished Old Georgetown Family Succumbs.

RETIRED U. S. EMPLOYE

Randolph Keith Forrest, a member of the distinguished old Georgetown family of that name, died at his home, Oak Shadows, Seminary Hill, Alexandria, Va., yesterday morning following a long illness. Mr. Forrest, the son of Bladen Forrest and Mary Helen Keith, was born and lived in his boyhood days at the old Forrest home, on N street in Georgetown, which was bought by his grandfather in 1845, and which is still the home of Mr. Forrest's only living sister, Mrs. James Carbery MacSherry.

After attending school at Rock Hill College in Ellicott City, Mr. Forrest studied law in this city, and at the age of 20 began work in the Pension Office where he remained until a few years ago when he was retired because of ill health. Since that time Mr. Forrest with his family has spent his time between his home in Georgetown (1411 Thirty-fifth street) and his Virginia estate.

In 1910, Mr. Forrest was married to Marie Moore, daughter of Rear Admiral W. S. Moore, United States Navy, who is widely known as a leader in civic drama and pageantry. Mr. Forrest is survived likewise by his daughter, Mrs. Thomas James Thornhill, jr., wife of Ensign Thornhill, United States Navy; his sister, Mrs. James Carberry MacSherry, of Georgetown, and his brother, Bladen Forrest, of Maryland.

Funeral service will be conducted at the Holy Trinity Church, Georgetown, tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

SERVICE FOR MRS. GRAVES

Capital Resident Will Be Buried This Morning at Bedford, Va.

Funeral services for Mrs. Florence A. Graves, resident of Washington for the last ten years, who died Saturday after an illness of several months at the home of her daughters, Miss Florence and Miss Carrie Graves, 1334 Vermont avenue northwest, will be held at 7:30 o'clock this morning at the home. Interment will be in Bedford, Va., tomorrow morning.

A native of Virginia, she had made her home for many years in Bedford before moving to Washington.

Besides the two daughtres here, Mrs. Graves is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth G. Page, of Philadelphia, Pa., and two sons, Joseph A. Graves, of Arkansas, and Edward P. Graves, of Toronto, Ont., and a sister, Mrs. D. P. Hancock, of Roanoke, Va.

Police Say Rum Bottles Hung in Prisoner's Suit

Arthur Saunders, colored, 19 years old, of Marion street near O street northwest, was sauntering along Seventh street near Florida avenue yesterday morning when he recognized Eighth Precinct Policemen B. Barnett and R. A. Williams. When he started running they gave chase and caught him in a nearby alley.

He was booked on a charge of breaking glass in the street, when he was said to have smashed a liquor-laden container in his flight, and also on charges of possession and transportation of 4 quarts of liquor. The policemen reported he was walking with liquor bottles in his trousers, tied to his belt.

Two Children Treated At Hospital After Falls

Two children received minor injuries yesterday in accidents at their homes. Mary Ann Lynn, 2 years old, of 316 Sixteenth street southeast, lacerated her left forearm when she fell off a couch at her home. She was allowed to go home after treatment at Casualty Hospital.

David Coakley, also 2 years old, of 434 Tenth street southeast, fell on a tin cup while playing at his home and cut his nose. He, too, was treated at Casualty and allowed to go home.

Plasterer, 30, Sought by Wife.

Missing since he left his home at 721 H street southwest at 5 o'clock Saturday morning for work, Lewis Furr, 30 years old, a plasterer, last night was the object of a search by Fourth Precinct police at the request of his wife, who said she was left with a 6-weeks-old baby.

World Restlessness Stressed in Sermon

Rev. William E. La Rue Preaches on Chaos in Universe.

THE REV. WILLIAM EARL LA RUE, pastor of Takoma Park Baptist Church.

The world into which Jesus came was a world perplexed, confused and disordered. It treated Him with cruelty. He found a few friendly souls here and there, but in the main His life was stormy and His death ignominious. He was the world's greatest benefactor, but the world has a way of treating benefactors harshly. With high courage He set Himself to the gigantic task of redeeming the world. That it was eminently in need of redemption is clearly disclosed by even a cursory survey of conditions in His time.

The condition of our world today, in spite of all that has been achieved, is chaotic. The confusion, restlessness and uncertainty that is abroad is being voiced in unqualified terms. Let us look at it politically.

Germany, for example, is beset by internal difficulties caused by its conflicting parties, such as the Socialists, Communists and Nationalists. Its financial and other conditions are such that the country has been placed under a dictatorship. We may go from one country to another in Europe and we shall find that confusion, dissatisfaction and restlessness is practically everywhere apparent.

From Egypt we hear "roars from the land of the Sphinx." There are controversies and riots arising from a conflict between nationalism and imperialism at the gate to the Orient. Chaos has been the order of the day in China for the past ten years. Bandit soldiers are holding vast areas under their lawless rule and Red agitators from Russia are seeking to win China to the fold of Socialist Soviet Republics. The situation in India presents many problems that have attracted the attention of the world. Will a round table conference curb its unrest? It seems doubtful.

From this very brief survey of the political state of the world let us consider things social. Here we are met with the fact of unemployment. It is declared that in Great Britain unemployment is 1,933,500 higher than it has been at any other time since the war. And this in spite of strained efforts on the part of the government to avoid it. The world seems to travel along the road of ups and downs and just now the "downs" appear to have it. The fact that 5,000 women were reported as contending for jobs offered 200 charwomen to work in Government buildings in Washington last week indicates the situation in our country. "Nothing Open Today," is the word that meets many persons looking for work in these days. People in large numbers are asking "Where do we go from here?"

Crime and lawlessness in our country present problems staggering to thoughtful people. A competent authority estimates the yearly cost of such crimes as embezzlement, forgery, burglary and fraud at $500,000,000. Our prisons are overflowing and are being filled with the youth of the land. Our educational system has reached its highest point of development but it is under the censure of the public because the product issuing, especially from the higher institutions of learning, shows a breakdown in cultivated life and quality of character.

The home life of our Nation seems to be breaking down. In current literature we read, "Is the old-fashioned home gone forever?" And to this comes the retort, "Where is the home we are to return to?" Eminent people are plainly alarmed at the outlook and assert that the country is facing a situation of widespread restlessness.

Now, it is much easier to analyze situations and state problems than to offer wise and helpful solutions. When Jesus, at the sunset of his earthly life, made the statement of my text He sounded no note of pessimism. He frankly recognized the wayward character and dire need of the world. His thesis is: The chaotic condition of the world is due to the fact that the people do not sustain right relations with God.

He not only stated the problem succinctly, but He did something about it. He had formed a small group of men into whose lives He instilled eternal principles and upon whom He left the imperishable stamp of His undying personality. Then He went to His cross. He submitted himself to the will of a wicked world that the world might see an object lesson of its own wickedness in the mirror of its own injustice.

The preaching of the cross that was once accounted as foolishness has proved to be the greatest factor for the remedy of the ills of the world. Earth has no sorrow that heaven can not heal. While we may be inclined to impatience with the trend of things today, we need to remind ourselves that those forces which Jesus set in motion for the reclamation of the world are working like leaven now. It can not be denied that so far the trend of progress is on the ascending scale.

The world is a great deal better today in every way than it has ever been before. The chief reason for this is the fact that Christianity has been implanted in it. There is no higher goal of life to reach than that which Jesus presents. There is nothing in the nature of human welfare or world betterment for which men may dream about and long for that is not in the program of Christianity.

Frankly must we recognize the fact that religion today faces the acute problem of expressing its life, its faith, its ideals and ethical principles in terms relevant to society under the domination of the machine. The machine is a great blessing, but its manipulation may prove a curse. Will our generation retain its moral sensitivity and develop its social insight so that it will be able to operate the system it has created? Shall men in the whirl of things modern be drawn away from all confidence in God and all consciousness of religious need? Shall Christians come secretly to look upon Christianity as a frill, something gracious but not indispensable, pleasant to live with but not impossible to live without? Shall the scientific control of life which has distinguished our age and armed man with such great ability to achieve his own aims only serve to lessen the need of religion?

It will be just like the spirit of the world to give the wrong answer to these vital questions. But notwithstanding, religion has an unbreakable hold upon the human mind. If you ask why, the reason is plain and it is this: Man cannot live in a universe of uninterpreted facts. The scientific control of things is great but it is not enough. Facts are like so much loose type which can be set up to many meanings. Men need the spiritual insight to enable them to avoid chaotic disarrangement of the facts of life. Men need religion for it is through religion that the human spirit, with the help of God, is led to seek and find an interpretation of experience that puts sense and worth, joy and hope into life.

* * * * *

Man's deepest need is spiritual power. With this power he can resist the subtle temptations that daily beset him. With this power he can rise upon the stepping stones of a living faith to higher things. This power comes through a knowledge of God, of His will and His ways. It springs like living water out of the soul's deep fellowship and communion with the living God. It is the privilege of the humblest person to have this fellowship and communion.

Religion, such as Jesus taught, is indispensable. By it we account for the good so far achieved. By it we shall avoid the perils of the present and the future. To build human life upon any other basis is to erect civilization upon a foundation of sand. Jesus, by His superior wisdom and keen insight, gave a correct diagnosis of the world's chaotic state and the cause thereof when He said, "O righteous Father, the world hath not known Thee."

Man and Woman Attempt Suicide

Act of Former Is Believed Due to Unemployment; Taken to Gallinger.

Two persons yesterday attempted suicide, one by poison and one by gas. Both were removed to Gallinger Hospital, where their condition is said to be undetermined.

Clyde Bohannon, 33 years old, who told police he had no fixed address attempted to end his life by taking several tablets of poison while in a house on Fifth street near H northwest. While he gave no reason for his act, it is thought that he was despondent over continued unemployment. He received first-aid treatment at Casualty Hospital before he was removed to Gallinger.

A colored woman was the other would-be suicide. Lucinda Simmons, colored, 25 years old, of O street near Eighth street northwest, was discovered yesterday in a gas-filled room at her home. She refused to tell police what had prompted her act, and was removed to Gallinger.

Nine "Car Watchers" Arrested Near Stadium

Determined to wipe out the troublesome practice of "watching cars," Eighth Precinct police yesterday afternoon, in the vicinity of Griffith Stadium, arrested nine colored boys and men on charges of soliciting parking, following similar roundups recently. All were released on bonds of $5 each.

They were booked as Fred Edmonds, 6 years old; Garnet Robinson, 15 years old; Harris Johnson, 39 years old; Raymond Wilson, 10 years old; Franklin Harly, 11 years old; James Spencer, 22 years old; Savannah Gillis, 15 years old; John Harvey, 11 years old, and Jack Smith, 12 years old.

Masons Lay Wreath On Tomb of War Dead

Unknown soldiers all, the 2,011 Union veterans of the Civil War, whose bodies were removed from the Bull Run and Rappahannock battlefields, were honored yesterday afternoon when a wreath was placed on their tomb at the Lee Mansion in Arlington Cemetery by Kallipolis Grotto, Masonic group of this city.

With the Rev. Homer J. Councilor, assistant pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, as the principal speaker, the services marked the usual custom of tribute paid to these soldier dead by some Washington organization on the first Sunday of each month. More than 200 persons were present.

Man Arrested in Death Of Victim of Stabbing

One man has been arrested in connection with the death of Dannie Brown, colored, 35 years old, of 202 Seaton court northwest, who died yesterday at Emergency Hospital after being stabbed on July 23.

Brown was injured in a fight in Fenton street northwest near North Capitol street. James Colston, said to live near where the fight occurred, is being held in connection with the death.

INDUSTRY NOW SEES UPTURN FOR AUGUST

Auto Plants Will End Brief Suspensions Beginning Tomorrow.

WHEAT PRICES TUMBLE

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The wheels of industry were being oiled and tested last week, for August is a month of normal seasonal quickening. It has marked the turning point in several depressions of the past, and business is preparing for the best, in the hope that it has seen the worst.

The wheels will actually begin to whirl in many automotive plants tomorrow, as suspensions of two or three weeks are ended and workers respond again to the whistle. No considerable change, however, is looked for in the great steel industry. Several manufacturers of smaller products, such as shoes and radio sets, however, are also stepping up their schedules.

On the whole, industry believes it is turning the corner, but having no satisfactory periscope to look around into the new street, it is drawing no conclusions as to how much pleasanter it may be. Most industrialists are planning on no more than seasonal improvement during the next month or two, at least, and are laying their plans with decided caution.

Steel Production Outlook.

With the quarterly reports of the two leading steel producers were issued statements last week expressing the opinion that production would expand during the remainder of the year. The statement of the finance committee of U. S. Steel gave no indication as to the scope of the expected expansion, and President Grace, of Bethlehem, explaining that things "Look a little better," added, "Very little."

Analysis appearing from important banking sources at the turn of the month were noncommittal, but mildly optimistic. The National City Bank found reason to believe that production had been below consumption in many lines during recent months, and that increased production would be necessary to take care of consumer demand in the near future. The Guaranty Trust Co. pointed to a disposition on the part of observers generally to look for some progress in autumn, but added, "This expectation, of course, does not imply that good business will return at a bound."

The Guaranty Survey pointed out that "Business in the future will not be stimulated by the urgent need for postwar rehabilitation that has been such a powerful influence in the past decade," and indicated that this significant factor must be considered in any appraisal of future prospects.

Commodity prices were still under pressure in spots, but on the whole, continued to display more steadiness than during June. Although no business revival is likely while prices are receding rapidly.

Late Upturns in Commodities.

Slow recession is not necessarily a hindrance. A survey of business and commodity price trends over the past 40 years, published by the Annalist, shows that business rarely turns upward during the main decline in commodity prices, but that it does not require a rally in commodities; in fact, upturns in business on the average have started eleven months before upturns in commodities.

The wheat market caused some nervousness during the week, as wheat futures again tumbled to new low levels since 1914. Cotton was also under pressure, recording low levels not seen since 1921, save in 1926. Crude rubber futures on the New York market tumbled below 10 cents a pound for the first time in the history of the industry, in so far as the records of the New York Rubber Exchange show. Corn, however, shot up several cents, selling above wheat. The crop appears to have been hurt by the hot weather more severely than in any year since 1901.

The weekly reports as to retail trade during the week varied. Bradstreet's concluded that both retail and wholesale trade were quieter, but Dun's decided that retail trade was somewhat better. The statistical reports coming to hand were not very pleasing. Freight car loadings as reported for the week ended July 19 showed some gain over the previous week, but were lowest for the like period in any year since 1922. The weekly failures reports were a little more pleasing, and the petroleum statistics were again more favorable. Bank clearings as computed by Bradstreet's for the week ended July 31 showed a little gain over the previous week, but a drop of 27 per cent from the like week of 1929.

Concern was expressed in some quarters over the victory of the high tariff party in the Canadian elections, and some estimates of likely loss of trade to United States ran as high as $500,000,000 annually.
